Roosevelt Ok's Cut in WPA Bill, Then Asks Restoration of Slash

$150,000,000 Needed Or 1,500,000 Will Lose Jobs In Three Months, Special Message To Congress Says; Request Sent Lawmakers As 'Emergency.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt told congress today an "emergency" exists in relief and asked "immediate consideration" of an additional appropriation of $150,000,000 for WPA for the next five months.

This figure represents the cut congress made in his request for $875,000,000 to carry WPA from February through June. The White House announced earlier today the president had signed the $725,000,000 bill last Saturday.

In asking immediate consideration of what he termed the "simple and alarming facts" in the relief outlook, Mr. Roosevelt said in a message to congress that with only $725,000,000 available, WPA either must reduce its rolls abruptly on April 1 by 1,000,000 persons or begin on that date a week-by-week reduction which by June 30 would drop employment from a present 3,000,000 to "a figure well below 1,500,000 persons."

"In other words," the president said, "the program of present employment would be slashed considerably more than one-half within a period of three months.

Greater Drop Foreseen.

"If, however, proper reserves were maintained at the end of the fiscal year, employment at the end of June would drop still further—to a figure of only slightly more than 1,000,000 persons.

"Therefore, on a program of gradual reduction from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 persons would be thrown out of Works Progress Administration employment—or, with the addition of those dependent on them, from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 Americans would no longer receive federal government aid."

Discussing the prohibition written into the relief bill against reducing WPA rolls by more than 5 per cent during February and March, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The need of these people is so apparent and so deserving that the rolls, in human decency ought not to be reduced during February and March by even 5 per cent. After conferences with the WPA it has been determined for the above reason to hold the rolls at the present figure of 3,000,000 persons during these two months."

LONDON, PARIS RECOGNITION OF FRANCO NEAR

Backing for Insurgent Regime Seen Only Hope to Check Dictator Influence.

WAR'S END IMMINENT

Loyalist Government Outlines Plan for Peace; 130,000 Refugees in France.

(By Associated Press)

An end to the Spanish civil war appeared imminent today while France and Britain considered reorganizing Insurgent Generalissimo Franco's regime as the legitimate government of Spain in an effort to check Italian and German influence there.

Diplomatic circles reported Premier Juan Negrin and his scattered government were swinging to the belief further resistance was futile. President Manuel Azana went into a French retreat at Collonges promising not to attempt direction of the Spanish government from France.

Thousands Cross Border.

A stream of refugees and government troops poured across the frontier into France following 130,000 others who already have sought refuge in the jammed border region.

All fighting appeared finished in Catalonia and government representatives were said to be negotiating with Franco for surrender of the government-held quarter of Spain consisting of the Madrid-Valencia-Alicante region.

In return, government leaders now asked only a pledge that peace would bring no reprisals and leave Spain free of any foreign domination.

Paris diplomatic sources said Franco had given France assurances of friendly relations after a semi-official French envoy, Sen. Leon Bernard, visited Burgos.

Speedy Action Needed.

British officials expressed fear that Franco would look entirely to Germany and Italy for aid in rehabilitating Spain unless recognition came soon from Britain and France, a step Britain was said to be ready to take provided the generalissimo agrees to end hostilities at once.

A second stipulation was understood to call for occupation of the strategic Balearic island of Minorca by Spanish instead of Italian or German troops. The island is still in government hands.

Rome political sources said Italy had disclaimed to Britain any intention of keeping Italian troops in Spain after an insurgent victory.

NOT MUCH LEFT

Wrecking of School Nearly Done; Start Building Soon.

With the razing of the small administration building west of the John Simpson junior high school due to get under way today, actual construction work on the new John Simpson building will begin within a few days, according to Vernon Redding and associates, architects for the project.

The small administration building will be torn down as a part of the construction job by the William C. Hawkins company, Cleveland, which will erect the new building.

Representatives of the Hawkins company said they would start excavation for the new structure as soon as wreckers have cleared debris of the old building from the site. Power shovels will be used to clear the rest of the old building away this week. Lester Redding, one of the architects, said.

Virtually all of the old John Simpson structure has been demolished and tons of materials from the building have been sold and removed from the site, which will be occupied by the new school.

FIND CORPSE

Policeman Discovers Body of Slain Woman In N. Y.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A policeman today stumbled across the body of a 40-year-old woman, apparently assaulted and beaten to death, in a snow-swept doorway on the west side of the midtown section.

The victim's face was badly bruised and her clothes were torn and disarrayed.

HEARINGS SCHEDULED

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Hearings on a resolution sponsored by Rep. Martin Dies (D) Texas, to provide $150,000 for the special house investigation into un-American activities until 1940, will begin tomorrow.

Girl, 11, to Lead Junior Safety Drive

Named Head of City-Wide Council That'll Have 5,000 Members.

AN 11-year-old Mansfield school girl will head a city-wide organization which, when fully organized, will number approximately 5,000 members.

Miss Bettie Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gibson, Park avenue west, was elected president of the Mansfield Junior Safety Council at the organization meeting yesterday afternoon at the City building. Bettie is a sixth grade student at Brinkerhoff school.

Other officers elected with her were Harlan Laser, Prospect schooly, vice president; Jean Platt, Country Day school, secretary; and Stanley Packer, West Fifth street school, treasurer.

* * *

These officers will head the city-wide organization which is made up of all school children under the Junior and Senior high age. The group will be represented at monthly meetings by officers of each school and two representatives-at-large from each building, which will be elected for each meeting.

The purpose of the organization is to make school children safety conscious, and their program will include cataloguing every accident to a school child, regardless of how small it is or where it happens, it was pointed out at the meeting. Cards will be made out on the accident and the facts will be analyzed at meetings and a program of prevention worked out.

* * *

The Junior safety council is being sponsored by the Mansfield Council of Parent-Teacher associations. Patrolman Frend Boals is city-wide adviser, and teachers will serve as advisers and sponsors at each building. The dues are five cents a year for each child. Meetings will be held in the afternoons with the next one set for Feb. 20 at Brinkerhoff school.

SENATE AWAITS ROOSEVELT DIG

Expects Lashing From Letter to Roberts, Rejected as U. S. Judge by 72-9 Vote.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt completed today a draft of the "interesting letter" in which he was expected to denounce the senate for its rejection of Judge Floyd H. Roberts whom Mr. Roosevelt had nominated to the Western Virginia district bench. The letter will be made public, perhaps today.

Mr. Roosevelt promised to send an interesting letter to Roberts if the senate rejected his nomination. The vote against Roberts yesterday was 72 to 9.

Roberts' nomination and that of Former Rep. Thomas R. Amlie, defeated Wisconsin Progressive, for membership on the interstate commerce commission have opened Washington's battle royal for control of the 1940 Democratic National convention which must nominate a presidential candidate.

Roberts was backed by Gov.

ROBBER FLEES

Holds Off Crowd With Gun After Cleveland Insurance Holdup.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—A robber who wore a mask held up employes of the Prudential Insurance Co. here today. The amount of money taken was not checked immediately.

A crowd followed the robber into the street but he held them off with a gun. He escaped through a yard, dropping several bills as he jumped a fence. Police in cruisers searched for him.

BEER, POLICE FACE COUNCIL

2 Issues Expected to Enliven Meeting Tonight; Ministers Back Sunday 3.2 Ban.

URGE IMMEDIATE PASSAGE

Councilman Seeks to Delay Action; New Motorcycle for Police Sought.

City council's February session tonight is expected to be enlivened by two major questions—the placing of a Sunday ban on the sale of 3.2 beer and the purchase of new motor equipment for the police department.

There was a likelihood of a wrangle over both, although developments today indicated that the police equipment question had been satisfactorily ironed out.

That was not the case with the Sunday beer ban, however.

Ministers Send Delegation.

As a result of their meeting yesterday, the Richland County Ministerial association will have a delegation at tonight's meeting, urging immediate adoption of the ordinance.

On the other side of this question was Councilman George C. Kyle, who said he would seek to delay action on it, asserting that he believed the state should be given time to "clean up" the liquor and beer license situation.

The measure, which would prohibit sale of 3.2 beer in the city on Sunday, comes up for third reading.

Defends Restaurants.

"I'm not in favor of passing the ordinance which would force restaurants holding 3.2 beer licenses to close on Sunday," Kyle said.

Two members of the Ministerial association are expected to attend tonight's session, urging final approval of the ordinance. They are Rev. G. E. Swoyer of the First Lutheran church and Rev. Paul Hollingshead, of Central Methodist.

"Cases in which there have been arrests and convictions for selling liquor on Sunday frequently have proved that these places had an excuse to stay open for the purpose of selling beer," Rev. Swoyer said. "If that excuse is removed, there will be no reason for any beer or liquor place remaining open on Sunday."

Meanwhile, Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist was looking for funds that could be made available for transfer to the police fund to permit the purchase of a new three-wheeled motorcycle for traffic work.

Nist and Mayor Claude M. Hunter, it was learned, had favored purchase of a new three-wheeled motorcycle for traffic work instead of a new cruiser, while Bates had held out for a new cruiser for which funds have already been set up.

At a conference this morning, Nist and Bates worked out a plan whereby, with a transfer of $500, both could be purchased. The plan

SNOW BOUND

New England Digs Out; Land, Sea Travel Crippled.

NEW YORK—(AP)—New England was crippled by a snow storm today that grounded planes and impeded sea and land traffic. The fall ranged from one to two inches in northern New England to five at Cape Cod.

Forecasters predicted the storm would abate late today and that the mercury would fall to 20.

Light snow decorated trees here during the night, but changed to rain in the morning. Skies were dark, the temperature was just above freezing and colder weather was forecast for tonight.

Colder weather overspread the Mississippi Valley and a severe cold wave has hit the northern Rocky Mountain region.

Two Mansfielders Nominated as Candidates For Naval Academy

Two Mansfield youths attending the same university have received nominations as candidate and first alternate to United States Naval academy at Annapolis through Congressman William A. Ashbrook of the 17th district, it was announced today.

John Gano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gano, 136 Sturges avenue, and president of the June, 1938, graduating class of Mansfield High school, was nominated for the appointment, while Thomas B. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wright, Park avenue west, was named first alternate. Both are students at Northwestern university.

They will take the Annapolis mental examinations in April and the physical tests in June. If Gano is successful he will transfer his studies to the West Point of the navy. If he should fail in either of his examinations, Wright will have first opportunity for the nomination.

Doodles Mean Oodles of Money

47 Girls Make Living Reading Character From Scribblings.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Two smart girls in New York are making a living out of the absend-minded scribblings of folk who fiddle with a pencil while they're thinking about something else.

Such a scribbler is a "doodler." And Dorothy Hoffman and Jane Butler say with straight faces that even the most insignificant doodle has deep psychological import.

These 24-year-old girls and their staff of 45—mostly college graduates with a yen for psychology—have a lot of fun reading doodles. They read 'em for a fee at night clubs and beauty parlors, and often are called in to entertain at private parties.

Mostly, Dorothy and Jane just sit back and supervise from their studio. After all, the Scribble Reading School has been going since last May, and there's plenty of administrative work to be done. Doodle-readers must be trained and doodle experts in the field—there are branches in Buffalo, Philadelphia, and Boston—must be supervised.

It's A Real Business.

Definitely, the science of doodle investigation is a going concern. Dorothy, who backs up her ability at doodle-deciphering with a Sorbonne, University of Madrid, and University of Rome education, says the study is only in its infancy. She predicts an All-American future for doodle experts. Jane, a Cornell graduate, thinks likewise.

Dorothy first decided to capitalize on doodles when she was hunting up entertainment ideas for the night clubs. Before that she'd written features for "Judge," where she started the "Are You Sure?" quiz stunt. She also did a little lyric-and-music writing for some musicals.

A student at heart, she turned to Freud and Jung, and straightway announced that their interpretation of symbols helped decipher doodles. She set up a formula for reading doodles, and teaches it to her staff in a series of lectures.

Take the O-filler, who fills in O's in the headlines. The doodle-reader says he's a person of intense emotion and affection—other doodling would allow experts to read more of his character.

The scribblings of George Brent (a sample is pictured) show what the girls say is visionary idealism and a dislike for conflict. He follows an adaptive rather than resistant role toward others but is quietly stubborn if opposed by force—and he prefers hunches to detached logic and forethought.

Rose Bampton's creation, they say, shows the opera singer has exceptional vitality, intensity of emotion, and a dislike for obvious display of sentimentality. She is supposed to find emotional release in creative activity and to have a deep sympathy for human weaknesses.

They found that all that has been written on handwriting symbols couldn't give them what they needed to know to understand all doodles. So they analyzed hundreds of scribble art pieces at random, then asked the doodler to tell about himself. They followed up with a statistical job on their findings—and think the whole business added a lot to their doodle-reading knowledge.

THESE DOODLE READERS make a business of digging into scratch-pad scribbles and coming out with an interpretation of the doodler's character, as they did with the George Brent and Rose Bampton samples. They're Jane Butler (left), and Dorothy Hoffman.

POPE ILL AGAIN, BAN AUDIENCES

Cold, Cardiac Asthma Attack Results in Cancellation of Vatican Visits.

(By United Press)

VATICAN CITY—Pope Pius has temporarily suspended all audiences, it was announced today.

The Vatican secretariat of the state said he suffered a slight cold. A high Vatican source told the United States that he also had had an attack of cardiac asthma yesterday and that a physician, hastily called, had administered a digitalis injection.

There were conflicting reports during the morning, including one that the Pope was suffering from influenza, and the secretariat, after first authorizing a semi-official announcement that the Pope had suspended audiences to conserve his strength, decided to make a formal statement.

It was emphasized that the Pope's condition was not serious.

Vatican prelates said that the Pope's voice was weaker this morning and that occasionally he was shaken by slight coughing. It was added that he was more amenable to his physician's suggestions because he hoped his throat might be in condition for a speech Saturday when he is to receive the Italian episcopate in commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Lateran treaty with Italy.

NIGHT PROWLER?

Cleveland Police Jail Suspect In 20 Purse Snatchings.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Detective Louis Molnar said today a 35-year-old colored man arrested by a watchman while peeping into an apartment house window is believed to be the "phantom" purse-snatcher and slugger who has terrorized the University circle district.

The suspect wore tennis shoes when apprehended shortly after midnight, Molnar said, as did the footpad who struck down more than 20 women in the past four months.

DALADIER WINS

French Premier Upheld in Strike Penalty Battle.

PARIS—(U.P.)—Premier Edouard Daladier won an important vote of confidence today when the chamber of deputies supported him by 334 votes against 260 in his refusal to grant a blanket amnesty to strikers penalized by loss of their jobs for starting a general strike last Nov. 30.

Daladier at the climax of debate bitterly denounced the French Confederation of Labor for fomenting the strike.

The strike was called in protest against government economy decrees.

Daladier said the government would insist that all acts of labor violence, or pillage and arson, must be punished.

2 PRIESTS DIE

Cleveland Pastor, Friend Fatally Injured In Auto Crash.

WINSTED, Conn.—(INS)—Two priests, Rev. John F. Madigan of St. Thomas' parish, Cleveland, and Rev. Neal Sheehan of Assumption college, Sandwich, Ont., died today at Litchfield county hospital from multiple injuries received when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on an icy highway and went over an embankment in New Boston Mass., near the Connecticut state line.

SUBMITS AUDIT TO STATE TODAY

Zook Takes Report on Municipal Court Records to Capital After Completing Work.

State Examiner Elmer A. Zook today went to Columbus to file his special audit of Mansfield municipal court with the state bureau of audit and inspection. Zook completed his audit yesterday.

Dispatches from Columbus said that the report had been filed there at noon today and would probably not be released by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson for several days.

The special report on the audit of the court records was made after Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended clerk Allen K. Ports charging "certain irregularities" had been found in his accounts.

Zook's audit covered the period from Sept. 1, 1937, through Jan. 10, the date on which the judge issued his suspension order.

The audit of the municipal court is independent of the audit of the other municipal departments, which will be completed by Zook upon his return from Columbus.

RESISTS G. O. P. OUSTER MOVES

Fletcher Sticks to Richland Highway Post; Republicans Endorse 30 for Jobs.

Resisting attempts to oust him to make way for a Republican, Arthur Fletcher, state highway maintenance engineer in Richland county, asserted today that he will "keep right on refusing to resign without cause."

Fletcher, a Democrat, who has held the superintency for three years, said pressure was being exerted to force his resignation but that he had received no request from any highway official.

Meanwhile, the county Republican executive committee last night endorsed nearly 30 persons for state highway jobs in the Ashland division, and had obtained a liquor store appointment for Aaron Davis, former Republican sheriff.

Davis, who has been employed by the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, was on the job today as clerk in the state liquor store on North Main street. He was one of several applicants endorsed for state jobs last week by the executive committee.

Still silent on their endorsements, party leaders declined to reveal the names of persons endorsed last night, asserting that "there are no jobs open for them yet."

Several party workers were endorsed secretly four days ago for jobs in the liquor stores and aid for aged division in the event the state G.O.P. purge creates vacancies in those departments.

There was no endorsement, it was understood, for Fletcher's job as maintenance superintendent, although Republican leaders said James McMillen of Mifflin township is in line for the post. Fletcher is serving under a civil service appointment.

670 MILES P. H.!

Plane Pilot Dives 19,000 Feet While Unconscious.

SHREVEPORT, La.—(AP)—Second Lieut. Troy Keith of the Air Corps Reserve had no ill effects today to show for a plane dive of nearly four miles during which Barksdale field officers estimated he might have traveled faster than any human ever has.

Flying yesterday at 28,000 feet above Caddo Lake, Keith lost consciousness when his oxygen tank failed to function. Before he recovered, his army pursuit plane plunged to a height of 9,000 feet where he managed to get control of it and land safely despite a buckled wing.

Keith found that his speed indicator had jammed at 500 miles an hour. Other officers figured the plane might have attained a speed of about 670 miles an hour during the dive.

Racer Cummings Near Death After Highway Mishap

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—An ordinary highway accident put William C. (Wild Bill) Cummings, 32, of Indianapolis, nearer death today than ever before in years of automobile racing highlighted by his winning the 1934 500-mile race here.

His passenger car hit a soft shoulder near here last night, plunged through a rail guarding a bridge approach and tumbled 50 feet into Lick creek, throwing him on his face into two feet of water. Passersby pulled him out unconscious and saved him from drowning.

He was reported in critical condition from possible brain concussion in a hospital today.

Cummings, an automobile salesman, motorcyclist and airplane pilot off the race track, won the 1934 Memorial day classic with the then record speed of 104.863 miles an hour.

Recommends Major Part of Arms Plan.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Chairman May (D., Ky.) said today the house military committee had unanimously approved legislation to authorize the major part of President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 special defense program, including expansion of the army air corps to 5,500 planes.

Action on the bill came, he said, after Republican members of the committee sought unsuccessfully to limit the war department to production of no more than 1,000 airplanes in any fiscal year.

Representative Andrews (R., N. Y.), senior minority member of the group, said the limitation proposal was defeated, 15 to 10, on a "straight party vote."

MISSING AT SEA

9 Fishermen Believed Drowned By Pacific Storms.

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—A purse seine-fishing boat with nine men aboard was believed today a victim of the storm that smashed against the northwest corner of the United States and Canada yesterday and last night.

The 68-foot Sonny Boy, en route from San Francisco to Seattle with two other purse seiners, disappeared early Monday in a rain squall off Yaquina Head, a rugged section of Oregon coast.

LONDON—(INS)—A proposal that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain visit President Roosevelt as part of his "appeasement" program was voiced in the house of commons today but rejected as impractical.

New Blasts Rock London, Irish Tour of Duke, Duchess Delayed

LONDON—Arousing new fears of bomb and incendiary outrages, allegedly perpetrated by members of the outlawed Irish Republican army, several explosions rang out today in a manhole near the Stepney municipal electric power station.

Police and firemen immediately dashed to the scene.

The entire city of London, and, in fact, all of England, was suffering a case of jitters as a result of the series of outrages, plus revelation of details of an alleged plot to terrorize the entire British Isles.

Adding to the nervousness was an official announcement that the Duke and Duchess of Kent, "on the advice of the government of northern Ireland," have agreed to postpone their visit there until later in the year.

The statement did not mention the decision of the duke and duchess in connection with the bomb and fire outrages, but it was understood that official circles in Belfast fear that the safety of the duke and duchess might be threatened and that their visit might become the occasion of a demonstration should they go to northern Ireland at the present time.

Should They Elope?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The man I love devotedly asked me to marry him, last night. I should be very happy, but I'm the most miserable girl in the world. My parents are opposed to him because he is a foreigner, has a foreign name, and used to belong to a different religion. We can't all be Americans.

His parents were born abroad, and I should be very happy to be their daughter-in-law. Religion is the great question with my people. And though my fiance promptly changed his religion to mine, and now goes to my church, still my parents aren't satisfied. He's seven years older than I am, and that's another case for argument.

I'm going away on a visit for two weeks, and we're thinking of eloping, getting married, and just telling the family about it. Please give us your ideas. RUTH.

I've never been able to understand the narrowness and bigotry of certain Americans. It proves conclusively that they've never traveled, or they'd know your fiance's people came from a magnificent country, which has given the work great statesmen, great art and literature. The one thing I don't like about this young man is the way he has flopped from one religion to another. Evidently religion means nothing to him. Religion should be a matter of conviction and conscience. And in these days of live and let live, everyone should be free to worship God in his own way.

Better not elope; runaway marriages seldom turn out well and, as you say in your letter, your parents threaten to disinherit you.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, February 8.

Despite some very definite and tenacious obstacle, this should be a day of much progress, with high pressure activities and possibly much excitement. All matters seem to be under unusual stimulus for reaching advanced and profitable goals. Such require well-laid plans, clever manipulation and the subtle power to enlist the hearty support of employers, superiors and others of standing and influence.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great activity and enlarged opportunity for reaching cherished objectives. These should come through individual shrewdness and well-prepared plans for enlisting the support of superiors and those of financial or political standing.

A child born on this day may be clever, shrewd and ambitious, with much intelligence and business sagacity to attain rather high goals.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Touche!" I said. "And now suppose we get down to the real reason for this call from you. But I fancy I know it already. You wish to call me to account for taking Mary away from the hotel for a rest at the home of my husband's friend in South Jersey, is it not so?"

And then he did surprise me.

"Not exactly," he said coolly. "What I really wanted to find out was whether you had been in South Jersey at all."

"Do I understand," I asked frigidly, "that you are doubting the truth of what I have told you?"

"But you have told me nothing," he argued. "When I first telephoned the hotel a few days ago the nurse told me a very speciously-sounding story of your leaving in such a hurry for South Jersey that you had forgotten to leave your address. As I had been forbidden to try to communicate with my son at the farm, do you wonder that I put two and two together, and deduced that you were permitting my son and his wife a romantic interlude in defiance of my stringent rules for Mary's life while she is rehearsing? I might say in passing that the rules are exactly the same as I impose on all my players while they are in rehearsal."

"If that is what you think of me," I said proudly, although I was fairly ill with humiliation and fear, "then there is nothing more to be said, and we might as well terminate this interview, as well as our professional association, without further delay."

I was conscious that I was making what my husband would call "a magnificent bluff," similar to a successful one I had staged long before against this same arrogant man.

"Oh! yes, my little spitfire, there is a lot more to be said," he drawled, "but not on this particular subject. I am quite convinced that you and Mary were in South Jersey without Noel, and that Mary probably has derived a great deal of benefit from the trip. My only grievance is that you did not see fit to consult me about the trip."

I looked at him steadily.

"If I had," I said slowly, "would you have given your consent to the trip?"

He smiled sardonically.

"My dear lady," he said. "Don't you know that no matter what my reaction to any scheme of yours, your powers of persuasion would nullify all my objections?"

"No, I don't know anything of the kind," I snapped pettishly. "I was not so conceited as to think I could influence you, and I was desperate. Mary was really in bad shape. I was afraid of a nervous breakdown for her, and I did not dare wait for your very doubtful sanction. Therefore I snatched up my scissors and cut red tape mercilessly. And as my only apology, I want you to see Mary, and decide for yourself whether the improvement in her condition does not justify my action. Shall I call her?"

Then, for almost the first time in our professional association, I saw Philip Veritzen hesitant and confused.

"No, don't call her just yet," he said. "There's something else I want to talk to you about first."

Star Gives Party Recipes

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

FRIENDS OF Frances Langford are counting the days until February 14, when the petite motion picture and radio star, famous for her parties, is giving a Valentine party. One of her friends gave us details of the affair.

The color combination is the traditional red and white: a white linen cloth and red linen napkins, with a floral centerpiece of red tulips and white narcissus growing out of white pottery jars. The place cards are tiny cupid dolls with arrows pulled back waiting to be released. At the end of each arrow is a paper heart on which is printed the name of the guest.

Here is the menu, which we think is a nice one for any occasion: Fruit cocktail, tomato bouillon, blanketed chicken, sweet peas, chantilly potatoes, salad, Bavarian strawberry cream, nuts and red and white mints.

The first of Miss Langford's prized recipes is Blanketed Chicken. It requires four broilers, salt and pepper, four tablespoons finely-chopped green pepper, two tablespoons finely-cut chives, 16 slices thin bacon, eight tablespoons flour, three cups cream or half stock, half cream.

Clean Broilers.

Split and clean broilers, place in pan. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, green pepper and chives. Cover with bacon and bake in hot oven until tender. Surround with a sauce made of three tablespoons fat from pan, flour and cream, seasoned with salt and pepper.

Chantilly Potatoes make a grand dish for those who now and again go on a potato bender. The Langford recipe calls for six cups mashed potatoes, three-quarters cup heavy cream beaten until stiff, one cup grated cheese, salt and pepper. Pile potatoes onto a baking dish. Add cheese to cream and season. Spread over potatoes and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) until delicately browned.

Bavarian Strawberry Cream requires four tablespoons powdered gelatin, cup cold water, cup boiling water, one and one-third cups sugar, two cups fresh strawberry juice and one and one-half pints whipping cream. Sprinkle gelatin into one cup cold water and soak for 10 minutes. Add boiling water and sugar and stir gently. Crush fresh strawberries until there is one cup of the juice. This can be done with a potato ricer or through a wire sieve. Add the juice to the gelatin mixture. When it begins to thicken, whip the cream until stiff and cut and fold it in heart-shaped molds. Be careful not to stir. Place the mixture in refrigerator. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

THEATERS

AL JOLSON'S first movie in several years will disprove the old axiom that history never repeats itself. Or perhaps it will merely be the exception to the rule. When the camera starts grinding on "Rose of Washington Square," the first song to be recorded will be "Mammy." The famous Jolson number was the first song recorded for the first talking motion picture feature, "The Jazz Singer" back in 1928. And just as it happened at Warner's studio 11 years ago, the listeners will be Darryl Zanuck, Lew Schreiber and Musical Director Lew Silvers.

Oh, For An Ending!

It is doubtful if any other picture in recent years has caused so much worry as to a proper ending than "Idiot's Delight." The first time it was completed, it followed the stage version, with the hoofer and the countess in an air raid from which there was no escape, singing "Nearer My God To Thee." After its preview in Hollywood, it was decided to remake the ending and Gable and Shearer were called back to the studio. It was made to appear that the lovers were out of danger and had a chance to live. They were singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." But after it had been shown in that version it was again remade—this time with the lovers outliving the air raid and singing a wild number while the countess does a hula dance. It's the latter ending that the Ohio theater patrons are seeing this week.

Still "Horror" Actor.

While Boris Karloff may not look so grotesque as in "Frankenstein" and succeeding pictures on that subject, his role and make-up in his current film, "Devil's Island" are enough to inspire a flock of nightmares. As the French surgeon sentenced to the horrors of its penal colony, he is subjected to such savage cruelties that his looks—via make-up—tell the story better than words. "Devil's Island" is being shown at the Madison through Wednesday.

Romantic Comedy.

A romantic comedy with Merle Oberon, and a drama of city streets, are combined to make up the Ritz bill for Wednesday and Thursday. The comedy is "The Divorce of Lady X," an Alexander Korda production, in which Lawrence Oliver and Binnie Barnes are featured. Miss Oberon demonstrates that she is a comedian as well as a delineator of dramatic and tragic roles. "Little Tough Guy" has the Dead End Kids, with Helen Parrish and Robert Wilcox.

Love At First Sight.

It's love at first sight when the milkman delivers the milk and sees the new maid, but complications arise when the milkman turns out to be the son of a millionaire, working out a wager, while the maid—but that would spoil the story. "Maid's Night Out," with Joan Fontaine, Allen Lane, Hedda Hopper and Billy Gilbert, will be a Park attraction for Wednesday only. "Paradise Island," one of the earliest talking pictures, is also scheduled.

Past Bobs Up.

A woman's past life catches up with her in "That Certain Woman," a Bette Davis starring vehicle at the Majestic, in which she has the support of Henry Fonda and Ian Hunter. As the widow of a slain gangster, who attempts to make a respectable place for herself in society, but is hounded by her past, Miss Davis has a role worthy of her talents. "Varsity Show" with Dick Powell, the Lane sisters and Fred Waring, is also shown.

Flowery Bonnet Predicts Early Spring

Crocuses and cowslips, jonquils and violets all bloom together on this new spring chapeau. Their floral gayety, the new high crown on which they are massed, the sailor brim beneath and the sheer veil that wraps them up all are indicative of spring chapeau trends. Rose Valois of Paris put them all together to wear right now with a draped black jersey flock.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

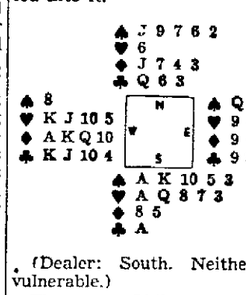
"The Authority on Authorities"

INTELLIGENT PSYCHICS

"With what do you mix your colors?" was once asked of the famous painter. Opie. He answered: "With brains, sir." That's exactly what should be mixed in with psychic bids, if you have intelligent players at the table with you.

Otherwise you may get your head beaten off. The fine player seldom makes a psychic bid unless he sees how he can escape from trouble if his partner is misled into it.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

That great Philadelphia pair of Charles H. Goren and Mrs. Ralph C. Young cut didoes on this deal, giving a demonstration of the acumen that has enabled them to win a flock of national championship tournaments. Mr. Goren began naturaly with 1-Spade in the South. West doubled, and Mrs. Young launched the fireworks display with a psychic 1-Heart, her safety, if it led to trouble, being her spade fit.

East passed, Mrs. Goren leaped at once to 4-Hearts, knowing his partner would be sure to have either a heart suit or a fit for his spades, as otherwise her bid would be a bad one. West doubled the 4-Hearts. Mrs. Young took out to a 4-Spades and West, now insisting on his partner putting him into one of the minor suits, bid 4-No trump. The partner had no trouble reading this, bid 5-Clubs, and Mr. Goren doubled.

The spade K lead was followed by the heart A, the heart 7 to the K and a ruff, return of the club 3 to the A, then the heart Q and the heart 3 ruffed by the now singleton club Q, for a run of the first six tricks and a set of 700 points. The important switch to hearts for ruffs was clearly marked by the psychic bid Mrs. Young had made, since, unless she was short in the suit, there would have been no reason to bid it over the double, in an effort to obstruct possibly very strong opponents. She also had made the right switch doubly sure by playing the spade 9 on the first trick, calling for a lead of the higher ranking of the other two side suits, since a switch was sure.

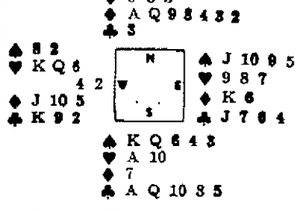
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

Against a lead of the heart K, how would you play to make 4-Spades?

Mouth Expression Changes

MME. QUI VIVE

Eyes don't change. They twinkle in childhood and in old age. Color remains ever the same, but things happen to the mouth. The prettiest one can become ugly if it doesn't mind its manners, keep sweet with lips uplifted.

What goes on in the brain determines the lines of the mouth. Giving way to frustration or chagrin pulls the under lip outward, giving to the face an expression of desolaton and despair which in time affects the fibers surrounding the mouth so that the pettish expression is a permanent fixture.

The determined, hard as nails woman does terrible things to her face, especially the jaws and lips.

* * *

When a woman looks in a mirror she relaxes the facial muscles. She never knows how she looks when she is in a temper. She may be in the habit of doing all kinds of facial gymnastics, yet be unaware of them. She may pull in her chin, purse her lips, lift her eyebrows during the course of a conversation— have half a dozen different faces, some of which she wouldn't recognize.

These facial clouds have a bad effect upon the tissues. They not only form deep lines, but effect the underlying muscles. That is why it is next to impossible to erase creases without the aid of plastic surgery. It is a crying shame that some women treat themselves so cruelly, create their own beauty sorrows.

The old-fashioned plant catalogued as cleome, but commonly called the spider plant, can be made very useful in the home garden. It grows very rapidly and can be used to fill vacant spaces in the hardy border or for a flowering hedge. The flowering season is a long one and as each blossom passes it is succeeded by a long seed pot not so large around as a lead pencil. It is on account of the spider-like effect resulting from the waving of scores of these seed pods in the air that the plant gets its name.

It pays to sprout seed potatoes before they are planted at least when an early crop is desired. It is only necessary to place the potatoes in shallow boxes and set the boxes in a sunny cellar window until the sprouts are well started. Of course, considerable care must be exercised at planting time not to break these sprouts off, but this plan will give potatoes for the table two weeks earlier than when they are planted in the usual way.

Handle woolen blankets carefully so as not to break the fibers in them. Sudden changes in the temperature of the water in which they are being washed will cause them to shrink. It is best to wash and rinse them in waters of the same temperature.

If you wish pie crust to have a glazed appearance paint it over with a pastry brush with cream or with beaten egg and water and bake in a hot oven 20 to 40 minutes, according to contents of pie.

If cream has been overwhipped pour a little cold sweet milk into it and stir slightly. The cream will then be of the right consistency.

CRACKS IN WALL OF SIGNIFICANCE IN APPRAISALS

Some Due to Settling, Others to Deficiencies; Designers Urged to Use Caution.

To a prospective home owner a crack in the wall or ceiling plaster is no more than an unsightly condition, but to a residential appraiser it has a far deeper significance, according to officials of the federal housing administration.

Structural deficiencies, which wield considerable influence in appraisals, are frequently disclosed when the causes of cracks are traced. Patching plaster and masonry-wall cracks is a simple and inexpensive process, but if a structural weakness exists the repair will be only temporary.

Poor Foundations.

Most cracks in the walls of residential buildings are caused by the unequal settlement of poorly built foundations. Builders of homes to be offered as security for FHA-insured mortgages are reminded that loads placed on the soil rest on a yielding material and that, therefore, every building must settle. Designers are warned to exercise care that the areas of the several foundations are properly proportioned to the loads. Settlement then will be even and equal throughout the structure.

Among other common causes of wall cracks is improper framing. Undesirable deflections will occur unless proper framing is placed around floor openings. Cracks which appear to expand at certain times of the year and close at others throw suspicion on the chimney location. Furnace heat lengthens the chimney in winter, and where the chimney is used to carry part of the load to the ground these "seasonal" cracks are likely to appear. In this case the unsightly crack is the least of the owner's worry, for the major concern of a fire hazard has also been introduced into the home.

Ceiling cracks are generally traceable to joists which are not deep enough for the span and load, spaced too far apart, or made of poorly selected weak timber. An excessive load on a particular beam will cause a short ceiling crack.

Several Methods Made Available For Good Lighting

Proper lighting for the closets in a home may be solved through selection from many available methods.

A ceiling light in a closet may have a pull chain or wall switch. There is always the danger, however, that this light may be forgotten and burn needlessly for hours. A switch outside the closet door may be equipped with a pilot light which glows red when the light in the closet is on.

A door switch which automatically turns the light in the closet on when the door is opened and turns it of when the door is closed is satisfactory.

Another arrangement is a light which burns for a stated time and then automatically turns off. This guards against wasted electricity.

Funds with which to make such installations may be obtained from lending institutions qualified by the Federal Housing Administration under its Property Improvement Credit Plan. The installations must be permanent in character.

Automobile owners paid $29,122,420 in taxes in Florida during the fiscal year of 1938.

BEDROOM LAVATORIES FEATURED IN MANY HOMES BUILT TO SELL

"Two bathrooms and additional lavatories in the bedrooms."

This phrase is found with increasing frequency in advertisements of new houses built to sell, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

There are many sound reasons for having a lavatory installed in each bedroom, the Bureau points out. A lavatory in the bedroom is a convenience which saves time and steps. Family routine moves along more smoothly because bathroom traffic is reduced. In fact, the installation of lavatories in bedrooms more than doubles the usefulness of each bathroom.

The smart styling and beautiful coloring of the modern china lavatory, with its handsome chromium-plated legs and towel bars, makes it decoratively acceptable in the most tasteful bedroom. There is no need to conceal it or attempt to disguise its purpose. Indeed, the fact that the modern lavatory with its generous shelf space and flat surface is universally used as a make-up table, makes it one of the most-used furnishings in the bedroom.

Equally suitable for use in the bedroom is the smaller, compact lavatory, size 22x18 or 24x20 and the larger fixture size 27x22. Some of the larger lavatories have distinctive fittings such as tubular metal legs, valves that work at a touch, ample shelf space, and a big, luxurious bowl.

Also available for installation in bedrooms is the cabinet-type of lavatory. This fixture consists of a basin of china or enameled iron set on a cabinet made of high-grade furniture steel. The cabinet, with its roomy shelves, supplies a convenient space for the storage of many toilet articles and cosmetics.

Accentuating the decorative features of the lavatory is the modern medicine cabinet with its handsome mirror and tasteful lighting. An especially striking effect may be obtained by the use of a round mirror with tubular lights at each side. The mirror has a diameter of 26 inches. The medicine cabinet, which is also round, has a diameter of 24 inches in the center.

Set off against a tasteful background of washable wallpaper, the colorful lavatory and lustrous chromium-plated fittings is easily the most decorative feature of a bedroom. There are many other wall coverings in addition to washable wallpaper which may be used to provide a water-proof wall around the lavatory. Glass brick, linoleum, or cermaic tile are only a few of the materials which will be both colorful and practical.

In modernizing older houses, it is advisable to consider the installation of lavatories in the bedrooms, the Bureau advises. Plumbing contractors will be glad to suggest the most economical location for such fixtures from the point of view of piping economy.

Full Basement No Longer Regarded As Real Necessity

A full basement is rarely essential and results in waste space when the house covers a large ground area, according to federal housing administration officials.

Excess basement space may sometimes be used as a recreation room, but only if conditions as to light, ventilation, and lack of dampness are favorable.

The part basement under only a portion of the house may be reduced to the space required for the heating plant and may also include laundry facilities if well lighted.

The tendency is to eliminate the basement entirely in small dwellings and provide space on the first floor for heating plant and laundry.

'Ripper Bill' to Revamp Ohio UCC Ready For Debate

MOVE TO OUST DAVEY'S AIDES RECEIVES O. K.

Senate Group Recommends Passage Despite Protests; Final Action Thursday.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The Ohio senate commerce-labor committee reported formally to the senate today that, despite the strenuous objection of union leaders, it recommended passage of an administration "ripper" bill to reorganize the unemployment compensation system.

The Republican leadership, backed by Gov. John W. Bricker's defiance of labor opposition as a "political patronage" proposition, planned to pass the measure on Thursday when it would be placed on the calendar for final reading under senate rules.

Bill Amended.

The commerce-labor committee drastically amended the measure last night in an effort to meet the objections of union representatives who packed the hearing room and assailed the bill as "dictatorial" and "un-American" in giving control of the jobless benefit system to an administrator instead of the present three-member commission.

The committee's amendments apparently failed, however, to stem labor's opposition.

John Owens, representing the Congress of Industrial Organizations in Ohio, said his group was "just as much opposed now as ever before."

The Ohio Federation of Labor's veteran lobbyist, Thomas J. Donelly, assailed the committee amendment to divide authority between the administrator and a board of review in some matters as insuring "one-man control."

Passage of the measure would enable the Bricker administration to gain control of the compensation system which now is dominated by appointees of former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The Bricker administration moved, meanwhile, to abolish the jobs of four parole board members named by Davey and to replace them with a five-member board to be appointted by Bricker.

Aimed at ousting Mrs. Myrna Smith, Davey's former personal secretary, from her $5,000-a-year-job on the board, virtually identical bills for reorganizing the board were introduced in both the senate and house last night. Legislative leaders indicated the measures would reach a vote next week.

Sen. Frank T. Whittemore, majority floor leader, said an administration bill to reorganize the tax commission would reach the legislature later in the week.

The house received last night and scheduled for rush passage this week an administration bill providing for funding of the school foundation deficit, variously estimated at between $12,000,000 and $17,000,000.

Wired Hips, Stiff Petticoats Style For Summer Wear

PARIS—(AP)—Wired hips, stiff petticoats with matching gloves, an apron over the evening dress, and canes with a vanity case in the top seem to be the things for summer.

Paris stylists who think they dress the world have finished their showings and the trends now are apparent.

The stylists put their emphasis on romance of three centuries ago. Judging from the saw-toothed collars and deep gauntlet cuffs on day dresses, and the stand-out hips over skirts falling in thick folds, for evening, they all had front seats at the theater Francaise revival of Cyrano de Bergerac.

The extreme in day skirts this year is 17 inches from the ground. Colors, including blotting paper pink, cover the rainbow cycle and more. Particularly noticeable were ensembles, with one piece contrasting the color of the other.

Balloon-shaped sleeves, wide-striped satins and romantic hoods frilled with small capes were prominent.

Jacquelyn Williams, 10-year-old student at St. Peter's school, won first prize in a poster and slogan contest in which hundreds of students from the Toledo diocese participated. The contest was staged by the Catholic Chronicle in connection with its annual subscription campaign and was in two classifications; for high school students and for elementary grades, five to eight inclusive. Jacquelyn won the contest with a simple, but effective poster, and the slogan, "The Eye-Opener." The prize was $5 in cash. She is the daughter of Mrs. Sue Burgess Williams, 17 Burnese avenue, and is a student of the 5th grade.

W. H. Hout's future pranks will not include driving a truck on ice. The Mifflin garageman attempted such a stunt on the Charles Mill reservoir the other day, and the ice gave away, the truck, Hout and all going down. Fortunately the water was not deep at the spot, just covering the wheels. The truck (and Hout) were pulled out of the water by a cable attached to another truck, but it was no easy job.

They laughed when Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools strapped on his skates and went out on the ice on North lake, but it wasn't long before their laughs faded into astonishment. Skating like a veteran and performing a few tricks for good measure, Miller proved that he hadn't forgotten he was a boy. When he finished without a mishap, an audience of friends who had been expecting to see him go into a "tailspin" at any moment, showered him with congratulations.

Mansfield Boy Scouts evidently believe that one of the requirements for a good chief executive is the ability to toot a horn and bring "moosick" out of it. Last year when the boys elected the scout to rule the city for a day they chose Ralph Arlin, a saxophone player. This year they have selected Richard Sowash, who plays a trumpet. The new "mayor" and the ex-official both play in the same dance orchestra at Senior high school.

MAPS PROGRAMS

Social Workers Committee to Plan for 1939 Meetings.

A committee to work out a series of informative programs for the remainder of the year for the Social Workers club was appointed last night by Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, president.

The group, with 53 present, held a supper meeting at First Methodist Episcopal church. E. W. Kissell, J. Leo Hartmann, Russell Gimbel, Mrs. Ambrose Middleton and Miss Marjorie Palmer were named to the program committee.

Last night's program was an illustrated lecture by Dr. Henry T. Stiles, roentgenologist of General hospital, who talked on X-ray and electrical therapy.

The musical part of the program was given by S. K. Jorgensen, director of instrumental music at Senior high school, and Mrs. Jorgensen. William F. Black and Charles Conklin led the community singing.

The next meeting will be held March 6 at First Presbyterian church.

MARRIAGE LAW BILLS STUDIED

Proposal Requires Ohioans to Get Medical Certificates; Hikes Ages Two Years.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Members of the house of representatives today studied the provisions of two submitted bills designed to revise, modernize and codify Ohio laws relating to marriage, divorce and annulment. Both measures were introduced by Rep. George B. Marshall (R., Franklin).

A requirement that would force every person contemplating marriage to submit to a physical examination is a feature of the proposed act. The bill also provides for presentation when applying for a license of a physician's certificate showing freedom from venereal disease, epilepsy, insanity and feeblemindedness.

Other vital points would change the marriageable ages from 18 to 20 for men and 16 to 18 for women, abolish common law marriage, force couples to wait six months before divorce decrees become final and invalidate out-of-state marriages designed to evade Ohio marriage laws.

The codes are the result of four years of research by the Ohio commission on marriage, divorce and separation created by former Governor George White in 1934.

According to Dean Herschel W. Arant of the Ohio State university school of law, the bills would raise the standards for marriage and leave divorce no more difficult to obtain than at present.

FATHER SURRENDERS SON WHO KILLED UNWED MOTHER, CHILD

(By International News Service)

EASTON, Pa. — Surrendered to police by a saddened father to whom he had turned for sanctuary, 22-year-old Howard Romig today re-enacted, police said, the double slaying of an expectant young mother and her 16-month-old baby in his farmhouse at nearby Wind Gap.

The victims, both struck by two bullets from a low caliber pistol, were Dorothy Bushkirk, 24, unmarried daughter of Ezra Bushkirk of Wind Gap and her fatherless child, Mary May.

The shooting, Northampton county detectives said, climaxed a bitter quarrel between Romig and Miss Bushkirk, who had served as his housekeeper since they became acquainted eight months ago. The young mother and child were found on the kitchen floor of the farmhouse and were pronounced dead at Easton hospital, where an autopsy will be performed.

It was after Dr. Theodore Reichbaum, county coroner, revealed that Miss Bushkirk was expecting another child that Romig allegedly admitted he had had relations with his housekeeper.

"We planned to be married early next summer," detectives quoted Romig as saying.

Capt. Russell Hahn, chief of county detectives, directed the re-enactment of the crime early this morning after questioning Romig for hours.

First imtimation of the double slaying was gained when William Romig, of Bushkill township, notified local police that his son had been involved in a crime and that he was ready to surrender the youth who came to him for protection and advice immediately following the shooting last night.

DIES AT AGE 53

Mrs. Lena Benedette, Mother of 15, Was Ill 2 Weeks.

Mrs. Lena Benedette, 53, of 198 Grant street, mother of 15 children, 12 of whom survive her, died in General hospital today after an illness of two weeks.

Mrs. Benedette was born in Italy, Dec. 25, 1885, and came to this country 35 years ago. She was a member of the St. Peter's Catholic church.

Surviving are her husband, Ben; four daughters, Miss Edith Cicolani of Italy and Mrs. Harold White, Mrs. George Kunz and Miss Hazel Cicolani of Mansfield; eight sons, Reno, Henry, Malio, Milo, James, George, John and Richard Cicolani of Mansfield; a sister, Mrs. Antonio Antonette of near Mansfield, and five grandchildren. Three children preceded her in death.

The body was taken to the Finefrock funeral home where it will remain until this evening when it will be removed to the home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

CHURCH RAZED

Century Old Lutheran Structure in St. Paul Razed.

YORK, Pa. —(UP)— A $200,000 general-alarm fire today razed the century-old St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church here.

More than 150 firemen battled the blaze for several hours and prevented the flames from spreading to the adjacent central school building.

NEW CONTRACT CUTS RATE PER CASE 5 CENTS

State to Terminate Agreement With Shaw Transport; Final Approval Up to Court.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—State officials announced today that the liquor department's disputed trucking contract with Shaw Transport, Inc., would be terminated and that a new contract would be signed with another firm—a move expected to save the state a quarter of a million dollars.

The status of the contract with Shaw Transport has been uncertain since the Ohio senate graft investigating committee inquiry a year ago. The contract with the firm called for a charge of 17 cents a case for liquor hauling but the firm was revealed to have sublet the contract to another company that did the hauling for 11½ cents a case.

Held One-Third Interest.

John F. Nolan, Steubenville democratic leader, was revealed to have held a one-third interest in Shaw Transport.

An agreement worked out by state officials, counsel for Shaw Transport and for the Citizens Tax league provided:

1. That $100,000 in trucking fees withheld from the Shaw concern under a temporary restraining order granted by the Franklin county court last March be turned back to the state liquor department.

2. That $76,000 due the Shaw concern but which had been held up pending settlement of taxpayer suits against the liquor department be paid to the company.

3. That Shaw relinquish its liquor trucking contract.

4. That the contract be awarded to Ohio Delivery, Inc., subsidiary of U. S. Truck Lines, at 11½ cents a case.

The agreement is subject to approval of the Franklin county court.

The contract with Shaw would not have expired until 1941.

ELECT C. C. TILL

County Farm Bureau Directors Name New President.

C. C. Till of Sharon township was elected president of the Richland county farm bureau last night at the annual directors' meeting at the organization's headquarters in Mansfield.

Till, who was vice president last year, succeeds H. H. Wolf of Franklin township. G. H. Culler of Monroe township was chosen vice president.

R. R. Howard of Cass township was re-elected secretary and Vance Clever, R. D. 3, Mansfield, was elected treasurer again. Clever also will continue as manager of the county organization.

W. B. Davis, who is employed in the Mansfield office of the farm bureau, was elected assistant treasurer, a newly created post.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Charlie Pyle, Dead Now, Was Goofy But Honest All His Life, Pegler Recalls

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—We saw him come and we saw him go, the gay gray optimist who quit the small-town nickelodeon business to become the most spectacular and the least hateworthy man of his type and time, which was the American era of wonderful nonsense. Charlie Pyle, dead now in Los Angeles, after several lingering years of life on borrowed time, was goofy. Not crazy, but goofy. He had big ideas and a casual, inefficient, careless ability, and he would have been a Barnum if he had had in his makeup a little of that ingredient that you might call balance.

* * *

Tex Rickard had contempt for him because Tex was secretive and a bluffer and a bit of a wolf as well, whereas Charlie would show you his hole-card and bet 'em high as a cat's back and didn't care much whether he won or lost, just so he got action.

He liked to win, naturally, and no kid with a new red wagon ever was happier than Charlie when he found himself pocket-rich for the short spell, and gave a magnificent dinner to the beauty and chivalry of the ringside and Wall Street aboard the steamship Paris at her pier in New York.

For a climax, Vincent Richards, then one of the greatest professional amateurs of the tennis business, came down the curving stairs with his wife, Gushee, on his arm, signifying that he had turned frankly pro and would tour the country with Charlie's troupe.

Gushee, herself, is a somebody, the girl who, on leaving the home of a condescending climber who was trying to do the Indian rope trick in New York society, turned to her hostess and with lovely sarcasm said: "Well, good-bye, youse. And don't think it ain't been charming."

* * *

They dined off the gold service that night aboard the Paris, and Charlie wrung the necks of many bottles of imprisoned laughter. He said, afterward, that as he sat there in the center of the head table, with his dressshirt creaking and the little bubbles dancing out of his glass, he could not keep his thoughts out of Pixley and Ehler's beanery on Van Buren street, Chicago, where he had lived on 15-cent meals one cold winter not long before.

"I would look at that pheasant and think of those beans and brown bread at Pixley's," Charlie said, "and look at that gold stuff and think of Pixley's tin forks and look at the champagne glasses and think of Pixley's java mugs, without handles, and I would say to myself, 'Pyle, this ain't you'."

* * *

Everybody knows that Charlie lassoed Red Grange at the University of Illinois in the fall of 1926, persuading him not to wait for his degree next spring, and took him on the road for a professional football career that earned them half a million, all told.

And everybody knows that he smashed the amateur monopoly of tennis receipts with a troupe that included not only Richards but Suzanne Lenglen and Mary Brown.

But it has been overlooked that Charlie conquered an almost religious prejudice in the public mind against professionalism in both sports.

* * *

Nowadays the star football player naturally expects to turn pro for a few years and nobody minds, but that was a time when Bo McMillin, another poor college star, was moved to arise at the coaches' meeting in New York to plead guilty, as though to an offense against society, admitting that he had played pro after college, explaining that he had done it to pay his college debts, and promising to err no more.

Tennis, too, although even more hypocritical and dishonest than college football, was regarded as a lovely flower of American culture which would wither and die at the first touch of honest professionalism. Others have received the profits of Charlie's nerve and honest originality for he went broke in football, along with Red, and was elbowed out of professional tennis, too.

* * *

He was a two-headed calf man at heart. He was happiest in later years with the monstrosities of his freak show, the mule-faced woman from Texas who would munch wisps of hay on her high pitch at the Chicago fair, and the little coal miner who had ossified but worried about his poor brother who didn't ossify and being, now, too old to dig coal, was dependent on the ossified man's earnings. They were his kind of show-folks and he seemed to enjoy and marvel at them as much as the customers.

We always end such stories with the prayer "Green be the sod above him," and this is no case in which to break the tradition.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's ashamed I ought to be, but a gent named Juarez didn't mean much in my life until I heard Paul Muni was going to play him in a movie.

Oh, yes, vaguely, I knew this Juarez had some place in Mexican history along with a couple of imported rulers named Maximilian and Carlotta, and down in Los Angeles' Olvera street (the tourists' Mexican center) they still sing of Don Benito Juarez on fiesta days.

But when Muni said he'd play Juarez—then I knew Don Benito was somebody. It's an axiom. Muni can say yes or no on parts he'll play. Anybody he plays is bound to be Somebody. Witness "Pasteur." Witness "Zola." Now witness "Juarez."

So I've gone back to school—at Warner Bros. college in Burbank. And now I know. Take the word of Prof. Henry Blanke, the associate producer; take the word of Muni himself; of Bette Davis, the film's Carlotta; of Brian Aherne, the Maximilian. Or (more simply) look it up in your history book, and you'll find the film's slogan—"as timely as tomorrow's newspaper"—isn't far wrong.

* * *

BLANKE and associates picked "Juarez" as a subject soon after their "Zola" was completed, and the script has been preparing since September of 1937. Blanke—38, boyish, scholarly—and four writers have been laboring over it that long. Aeneas MacKenzie, Wolfgang Reinhardt (son of Max,) John Huston (son of Walter) and Abem Finkel are the quartet.

First steps were to acquire screen rights to Hans Werfel's play, "Juarez and Maximilian," and to Bertita Harding's novel, "The Phantom Crown." Then research—digging into more than 200 sources.

The story, briefly, concerns the efforts of dispossessed Mexican land-owners to regain their holdings after the great liberal president Juarez, an Indian from Oaxaca, has distributed it among his impoverished exploited people. In France, Napoleon III and Eugenie are persuaded to send French troops to Mexico to drive out Juarez, and in the deal the Hapsburg Austrian Maximilian is made Emperor of Mexico.

Driven to the north by French armies, Juarez remains obstinate in his battle for democracy, even when Maximilian, after study of the patriot's doctrines, becomes a convert and offers the fugitive high place in the monarchy. With the end of the Civil War in the United States, Lincoln invokes the Monroe Doctrine, Juarez captures the capital, and the erstwhile emperor is sentenced to death.

* * *

THIS brings on the great scene in the film—the all-important speech in which Juarez refuses, despite the collective pleas of Europe, to veer from his democratic ideals by sparing Maximilian's life. (It was important enough to keep the producer and writers busy on it one solid month). Important because, up to then, audience sympathy has been with Maximilian and Carlotta, now must be switched to Juarez.

From the Warner college I learned, too, that Secretary William Seward, who knew both Lincoln and Juarez, once called the latter "the greatest man and greatest leader of his time."

Which ought to be enough—even for Muni.

'COURT GAME TOO FAST FOR PLAYERS, FANS,' BECHTEL.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

BASKETBALL is too fast for its own good, Rube Bechtel, veteran Toledo referee, contends.

Not only is the present streamlined game too fast and exhausting for the players, but spectators find it difficult to follow play, Bechtel contends.

"Coaching strategy is wasted in the present 'running' game," Bechtel says. "All that the game amounts to now is basket shooting; ball handling and defensive skill are no longer essential."

Only teams blessed with great reserve strength can play the "running" game effectively, according to Bechtel, who handled the Mansfield-Akron West tilt the other night, but many clubs are trying it to the detriment of their players.

While the spectators say they like the game, Bechtel believes they will change their opinion after a few more years of it. "It is impossible to appreciate the fine points of the game as it is now being played," the Toledoan declares.

He also attributes the many scoring mistakes in major games to the heavy scoring pace now being set. Scorekeepers do not have the time to properly handle the scoring, he contends. Baskets are scored so rapidly that errors are inevitable.

Bechtel advocates the adoption of an amendment to slow up the pace without injury to the popularity of the game.

Instead of handing the ball to the player under the basket after a field goal, Bechtel believes that the ball should be thrown to an official at the foul line, who then would return the ball to the eager.

This would slow up the game long enough to give the defense a break, the popular official believes.

He admits that it would probably reduce scoring to some extent, but not enough to make it noticeable.

CHAPTER XIX.

Rising, Alix pulled the little white hat over her hair. Everything had been explained now. Everything was quite clear, painfully clear. "You haven't answered me, Alix," Don said. "Do you refuse? If you do, your job is still waiting for you. If you accept, then I want to be married at once. It's not the bet. You know that doesn't mean anything to me. But we're both alone and we're lonelier than we've ever been."

"I never told you about my brother. I don't know where he is. Probably on a tramp ship or jumping freight cars or—or worse."

"Then why not consider him and what I can do for him?"

"I won't give you my answer now. I'll have to think about it. I'll meet you here tomorrow afternoon at 3 if you'll send a car and chauffeur for me. I want to come out alone." She smiled a little. "You've made it quite plain that I'm second choice to Bernice."

"I'm tired of lies and playing a part."

"And you're second choice to Kurt. You know that. Take me back now. No, not back to Tuck's. Back to my room."

"Tonight alone in that room is a sample of what you have ahead for years. Think of that. Or this house or any house you want. We'll travel. There are places more beautiful than you could ever imagine. You've missed everything, Alix. I'll take your brother in the office or send him away to school I'll find him and bring him back. You reminded me once that money was power. I'd like to do something useful with mine—for once. Think about that—tonight."

"I will." Her voice was tired. "Now please take me back."

* * *

The car paused at the curb in front of Mrs. Bishop's house. Ivy House or this, Alix wondered.

"You can't come in, Don. Rules."

"Tomorrow at three then." He took her hand and put it to his lips. "I'll be waiting, Alix. It's loneliness or living again for me, too. Help me to make up for some of my mistakes. Don't leave me to live alone in that house."

"I'll remember everything you said, Don."

Waiting on the steps until the car turned the corner, she went into the house and walked slowly up the dark storis to her room. Over the furniture was a thick layer of dust and unler the sagging bed were feathers of dust. The windowpanes were streaked from recent rains There was a musty odor

Taking off her hat, she threw it on the faded blue bedspread and went to the window and put it up. Standing there quietly with the faint cool breeze against her face, she thought of each promise he had made.

A violet dusk filled the room. Moving as if she were very tired, Alix left the room and went into the dark hall to the telephone and called Bernice's number. She had to wait a long time before Jenny said, "This is Mrs. Lawrence's residence."

Alix put courage in her voice. "I'd like to speak to Mrs. Lawrence. I must speak to her. I'll keep calling until she talks to me."

The urgency of the young voice startled Jenny into saying, "Wait a minute. I'll see." Going into the yard where Nancy and Tod and Bernice were sitting under the large tree, she said, "Somebody on the phone. Mrs. Lawrence. Says she must speak to you."

Nancy spoke up, "Don't answer it, Mother."

"But perhaps I should this time, dear. It may not be Alix."

Alix? Tod's eyes darkened with interest. What did they have against Alix that they did not want to speak to her? Why had she not been to see them? Should he speak out now? No, not yet. . . .

"I'll see who it is," Bernice said and went into the house.

Again Alix put courage in her voice when she heard the clear calm, "Hello."

"This is Alix. I can't explain very much now. And besides you probably won't believe me. But I beg you to do what I ask. Go to Ivy Houset tomorrow afternoon at three. Please go. It will be your regret and not mine if you don't."

"My dear child," Bernice said. "Aren't you being rather mysterious?"

"I am begging you to go there tomorrow afternoon at three. I can't explain now. But you must go."

"Is Don ill?"

"He'll need you tomorrow afternoon. You must go to him. Won't you forget your pride and humiliation? You don't realize how much depends on your going. I can't say any more now. The rest depends on you. Will you promise . . . "

"I'm afraid I can't promise anything. You seem quite upset. Goodbye my dear."

* * *

When she joined Nancy and Tod, she said, "It—it wasn't Alix It was the woman about the wool for your dress, Nancy."

Tod puffed on a cigaret, looking relieved. Bernice hid her flushed face behind a magazine Nancy looked puzzled

Standing beside the opened window again in the little room. Alix thought, "If she doesn't go. I'll probably marry him. Everything he said was true about what I have before me. It won't matter."

The next day she wore a brown linen skirt and yellow silk sweater when the car came. When it stopped before the house, Mrs. Bishop, peering as usual through the curtains, savoring the drama of the street, remarked, "You've got some mighty fine friends, Miss Barton. You shouldn't have to worry about jobs and room rent."

This was another important day in her life, Alix thought, getting in the luxurious car, feeling small and shabby in clothes two years old. "To Ivy House," she said to the chauffeur. Her heart thudded. When she saw the familiar street again, would she be doomed to the loneliness Don had spoken of or would she be a reluctant Cinderella soon to marry into the Lawrence millions? Everything depended on Bernice.

Out on Charles street a black and silver roadster passed. Kurt's roadster She sat up and saw Gina and Jerry Fayne, Gina very beautiful in white and Jerry oblivious to everything except the intimate smile Gina was giving him. Alix sat back. Already, she thought, already?

When Ivy House was in view and she saw Don's coupe in the driveway, she looked at her watch. It was five minutes to 3 o'clock. She spoke to the chauffeur again, "I don't want to go in magnificent house could be hers. But would it not be, as he time with Kurt had been time really colored dress. Bernice? It had to be!

The chauffeur looked at her again. What was the girl crying about, he wondered.

Alix said, "In about fifteen minutes you may take me to the house. I just want to see if everything is—all right."

* * *

The tall mahogany clock in the vast hall had chimed three times several minutes ago. Don threw his cigaret into the empty stone fireplace and walked out on the terrace, his ears attuned for the sound of light, high-heeled footsteps.

Hearing a car stop in the driveway, hearing the footsteps, he waited until they were on the terrace before he turned, expecting to see Alix's slender little figure and her halo of bright hair.

But Bernice, tall, dark-haired, her full mouth trembling, stood in the shadows. And it seemed the driveway. Park the car on the highway for a few minutes. I'm—I'm waiting for some one."

No five minutes of her life had ever seemed quite so long. That stolen from Gina, stolen from Bernice? Of what was on, waiting in the house, thinking? The chauffeur looked through the mirror at her inquisitively.

At five minutes past three a small roadster driven at an alarming speed turned into the driveway. Alix had a brief glimpse of a white hat and a coral an incredibly long time that they just stood there and looked at each other and did not, could not speak.

Six years were between them. Six years of bitterness and exile. The tears were falling from Bernice's lashes but her mouth was trying to smile.

"Don . . ."

"Don't come to me. I am coming to you," he said.

With each step, he thought, he was picking up the broken fragments of their lives, clearing the way, making the path to her clean and straight. He had forgotten about Alix . . . who wished to be forgotten . . .

Standing before her, close to her he asked, "Where shall I begin, Bernice? Where we left off six years ago? Not six years ago. A Century. Why did you come?"

"Alix called me. She said I had to come today at three. Are you going to marry her, Don?"

BLACKSTONE BRINGS STAGE SHOW, '1001 WONDERS' TO OHIO FRIDAY

Harry Blackstone, the last of a school of famous magicians, will be presented at the Ohio theater Friday and Saturday in his full length stage show, "1001 Wonders."

He comes to Mansfield directly from the Palace theater in Cleveland where he is appearing this week, and carries the largest magic show in America. Blackstone, a contemporary of the late Houdini and Thurston The Great, has been entertaining the American public for many years, and has appeared in Mansfield two or three times in the past two decades.

He is the originator of many of the famous tricks of necromancy, notably the disappearing canary and bird cage, the walking handkerchief and the thrilled in which a girl is sawed in two.

This year one of his most spectacular stunts is making a big white horse disappear before the audience in a split second. He carries mechanical contrivances and settings that crowd an ordinary theater stage to capacity.

Blackstone, who has a tremendous following among youngsters, is said to have given away more than 100,000 live rabbits during his career.

He last appeared in Mansfield in 1926 at the old Opera House.

SEEKS FUNDS FOR VILLAGES

Lutz to Introduce Bill Which Would Provide Gas Tax for Street Repairs.

Bills to provide for the use of state gasoline tax funds by village street commissioners for street repairs and to enable school boards to obtain liability and property insurance on their automobiles and trucks will be introduced in the state legislature this week by Ralph C. Lutz, Richland county representative, Lutz said today.

The Richland representative said he also would renew his campaign in behalf of his proposal to permit street fairs to share in state and county funds.

His bill for a wider distribution of funds to fairs was introduced recently and sent back to a committee for revision. In this section. the bill, if it becomes a law, would give the Shelby and Frederickstown street fairs up to $800 a year from the county commissioners.

A law now in effect excludes independent fairs from sharing in state and county funds if they were organized less than three years previous to 1919. The Richland county fair and the Bellville fair are the only ones in this county which receive outside help.

Under the present set-up, villages receive a small allocation of gasoline tax funds from the state but not enough to finance street repair and maintenance programs. The rest must come from their general funds.

Lutz said his proposed bill to allow school boards to obtain insurance on their motor vehicles will lift the responsibility in the event of an accident from the driver's shoulders. Only the driver can obtain insurance under the present law.

The proposal has the backing of Mansfield school officials and those in other parts of the state.

W. Basinger.

COLLECTS $642

Mayor Reports On Licenses Issued In January.

The city's general fund was increased by $642 collected in license fees during January, a monthly report of collections submitted to city council today by Mayor Claude M. Hunter showed.

During the month 14 bus licenses were issued for a total of $175. 20 taxicab licenses brought in $250. eight dance licenses $100. 34 barbers' permits $67, an astrologer's license $5, peddler's license $5.40, and one marriage license, $3.

Is Play House Commercial?

Members of the stagehands' union in Cleveland picket the Play House, demanding that the theater employ union stagehands. The union contends that the Play House should employ union workers the same as any other theater. The Play House management contends it is a community institution, not a commercial organization, and points out that the work the union wants its stagehands to do is performed by students learning about the theater. The argument has been in progress for two years.

ENTRY

In the matter of the elimination of the grade crossing over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on State Highway No. 501 located at a point in Richland County, Ohio, about ½ mile east of the westerly county line

Whereas, plans and specifications covering the elimination of the grade crossing over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on State Highway No. 501, located at a point in Richland County, Ohio about ½ mile east of the westerly county line, have been placed on file February 6, 1939 in the office of James Atkinson, Resident District Deputy Director for Richland County, State Highway Department Bucyrus, Ohio, for the examination of all persons interested and

Whereas, said plans show all changes of grade and location of the highways involved in the improvement, all private property to be taken, the grade crossing to be eliminated, and all other matters and things relating to the proposed improvement, as required by law, also the general specifications under which the work is to be carried out

Now therefore, I do hereby determine and declare it to be my intention to make such improvement in accordance with said plans and specifications above referred to.

It is ordered that a true and correct copy of this entry be published once each week for two consecutive weeks as provided by law and as notice of my findings and determination in the matter

It is further ordered that a true and correct copy of this notice be served by registered mail upon the owner or owners of land abutting on any portions of the improvement to be physically changed, or otherwise affected, in the construction of the improvement.

It is further ordered that all owners of property abutting on or affected by the improvement take due notice of the contents hereof and shall, on or before 12 00 o'clock noon on the 8th day of March A D 1939 file in duplicate with James Atkinson Resident District Deputy Director for Richland County, State Highway Department, Bucyrus Ohio their itemized claims for compensation for land taken and for damages resulting from such taking and for the making of said improvement in Richland County, and failure to file any such claims shall be deemed a waiver thereof as provided under Section 1227-11a and as further modified by Section 12-8 2 General Code of Ohio

It is further ordered that The Johnson Oil Refining Company Chicago Illinois being a non-resident of the State of Ohio, is hereby directed to take notice of the contents of this my notice of intention to proceed with the said improvement on or before 12.00 o'clock noon, on the 8th day of March 1939

Witness my hand and seal this 6th day of February, 1939

HUMPH! HOW DO YOU KNOW WHAT HAPPENED?
2-7-39
I WAS NOT HIDING UNDER THE COVERS- AND THEN HE CHANGED HIS EAR 'BOUT HALF OFF, GOT HIS LEG, TOO-AND IN FACT, HE BIT HIM DARN NEAR ALL OVER-
HA! HA! IT WAS FUNNY, AT THAT- AND THE WAY THAT BIG BABY HOLLERED-
I GOT TO MY WINDOW IN TIME TO SEE HIM CROSSIN' TH' YARD-SANDY GOT HIM AGAIN AS HE WENT OVER TH' FENCE— HA! HA! YEP-SANDY BIT TH' PART THAT DIDN'T GET OVER TH' FENCE LAST-
YOU SAID IT! HE GOT THE BEST PART OF THAT BUMS BRITCHES-
YES- HIS HIP POCKET WITH HIS WALLET IN IT, AND FORTY DOLLARS IN THE WALLET- SANDY, YOU'RE A SMART DOG-
YES, SIR - I ACTUALLY DO BELIEVE SANDY DID KNOW THAT WAS A POCKET BOOK-

NOTICE!

Because, through no fault of its own, The News-Journal has been printing the comic strip "Tailspin Tommy" ahead of the regular release dates, appearance of the feature has been temporarily suspended.

However, the comic strip has not been discontinued.

It will reappear with no interruption in the continuity of the story on Saturday, Feb. 25, in the week-end green tabloid, in which it will appear thereafter.

The new and popular strip, "Blondie," now appears on this page daily.

UTILITIES DIP WITH LIST IN LOWER MARKET

List's Failure to Follow Power Stocks Blamed for Chilled Sentiment.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks generally drifted lower in today's market and even the buoyant utilities of yesterday inclined to slip.

Leaning backward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, North American, Commonwealth & Southern, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, N. Y., Central, Allied Chemical, General Electric and U. S. Rubber.

Speculative forces had a fair amount of constructive news to go on, but the failure of the list to follow through with the power stocks Monday was said to have chilled buying sentiment.

Bonds and commodities were uneven, as were overseas securities markets.

Among items studied in boardrooms were:

Early estimates of last week's freight loadings indicated a slight decline from the preceding week, due to weather conditions rather than to a basic traffic drop.

Forecasts were heard in transportation circles that the current heavier carrier purchases of rails and other maintenance supplies would continue well into the second quarter of this year.

Statements of weekly reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve system in 101 cities disclosed a decrease of $43,000,000 in loans to brokers and dealer during the week ended Feb. 1.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired headachy days and then having to take an emergency medicine—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to the lack of "bulk" in modern diets. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this toasted nutritious cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

DistricT BREVITIES

CRESTLINE—A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snyder of West Bucyrus street, Monday at Emergency hospital. The baby has been named Mildred Charlene.

MEDICAL DOCTORS PRESCRIBE PRECISELY

By John C. Davis, Druggist

The doctor spends his days and nights in a continual fight against disease, against real and threatened illness. He must not guess, he must know exactly what he should prescribe for his patient.

Study and research, enable him to keep abreast of scientific discoveries. He lives his profession to a degree unknown by other men. It becomes second nature to him to check, to weigh cause and effect, to study specifics and to know results.

His exact prescriptions should be filled by a man similarly devoted, equally precise in methods and characteristics

See your doctor at regular intervals for a health check-up. Confide his prescriptions only to a skilled druggist.

WARN INCOME TAX DEADLINE 5 WEEKS AWAY

Deputy Collectors Urge Early Filing of Returns at Post Office.

With a March 15 filing deadline for federal income tax returns, deputy collectors stationed at the Mansfield post office today urged taxpayers to take advantage of early filing time and avoid a last minute rush.

Persons who filed a return last year already have been sent blanks for making their returns.

Deputy Collectors A L Wentz and C. S Mosey pointed out today that making the returns before the deadline is a benefit to the taxpayer as well as the government

They urged careful reading of instructions accompanying the forms for filing returns and explained that assistance in filling the blanks would be given at the local office which is open daily from 8.30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m., except on Saturdays when it closes at noon.

Few excuses for failure to file returns by March 15 will be accepted this year, they said.

The period for filing returns on 1938 incomes expires at midnight, March 15

Here's Who Must File.

Every single person or married person not living with husband or wife who had an income during 1938 of $1,000 or more must file a return. Married persons having an income of $2,500 or more also must file as well as husband and wife living together, who had an aggregate income of $2,500 or more.

There is a four per cent normal tax on the amount of net income in excess of the personal exemption, credit for dependents, earned income credit and interest on government obligations There is a surtax on net incomes in excess of $4,000.

In addition of exemption of $1,000 for a single person and $2,500 for married persons, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each dependent.

A dependent is defined by the income tax regulations as one under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" means not only crippled and those mentally defcctive, but also persons in ill health and the aged.

PONTIAC GUEST

Weidner Among 25 Leading Dealers in U. S. Again.

One of the nation's 25 leading Pontiac dealers for the second time in three years, Peter Weidner, proprietor of the Weidner Motor Sales, East Second street, was in Pontiac, Mich., today as a guest of the Pontiac Motor Car company.

With 24 other dealers who set sales records throughout the nation last year, Weidner won the all-expense trip to Pontiac. Weidner, who also operates a Pontiac agency in Loudonville, ranked among the upper 25 dealers two years ago.

He shared honors last year with C. J. Solomon, his sales manager, who delivered more new and used Pontiac cars than any other salesman in the Cleveland district which includes most of Ohio. Solomon will receive an award from the manufacturers.

An early use of camouflage was made by the British in Louisiana in 1815 at the battle of Chalmette. In their retreat they left stuffed figures to resemble musketeers.

Honesty is also the best foreign policy.

Why doesn't Jack Benny lay off of Fred Allen for awhile and pick on George Burns?

The idea seems to be that there should be nothing less than a nation-wide hook-up of a secret conference.

Ordinance to Ban Sunday Beer Sale.

UNLESS sidetracked by opposition, the ordinance to ban Sunday sale of 3.2 beer in Mansfield will be up before city council tonight for third reading and passage.

Similar ordinances have been passed in other Ohio cities and upheld by the courts.

While Sunday sale of beer continues to be countenanced in some cities, under the fallacious argument that it is non-intoxicating, a strong case against the practice is based on the frequency with which such Sunday selling has been used to cloak bootlegging of hard liquor.

A slight show of opposition to the ordinance, which has had its second reading in Mansfield city council, is based on an idea that some changes in state liquor laws and regulations are in prospect and that these may prohibit the Sunday sale of beer. This cannot be depended upon and there is apparently no good reason why council should delay passing the ordinance on any such grounds.

It is mere coincidence that the ordinance is favored by such widely divergent organizations as liquor permit holders and the Mansfield ministerial association. Sunday sale of 3.2 beer, with its associated bootlegging activities, is a part of the looseness in present handling of intoxicants that should be corrected as quickly as possible. Passage of the ordinance at tonight's council meeting would be a step in the right direction.

Boy Scouts Are Men In the Making.

WHEN Mansfield Boy Scouts take over city offices tomorrow, as a part of the anniversary week program of that organization, there will be more to it than mere play.

These boys, who have been chosen by their scout associates to serve in various official capacities for the day, will have a fine opportunity to learn some of the things that they will need know within a very few years.

In their own troop elections, and in tomorrow's practical experience, Mansfield Boy Scouts can gain knowledge that is lacked by many of their elders as to methods of conducting public business and duties of various city officials.

On this twenty-ninth anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America, it is timely to again consider the remarkable accomplishments of this organization in influencing the lives of millions of boys who were at some time privileged to enjoy scout training. Many who were of scout age in those earlier years are now approaching middle age, but it may be doubted if any have entirely forgotten the pleasures and benefits of their scouting experience.

When so much thought is being given to problems of mischievous human behavior—crime, dishonesty, immorality, dissipation, juvenile delinquency, and the like—it is somewhat surprising to note that general conformity to such simple rules of conduct as are set forth in Scout Law and the Scout Oath would bring amazingly quick improvement in conditions that are sometimes discouraging.

The Scout Oath, for instance: "On my honor, I will do my best—To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout law; to help other people at all times; to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

Think what would come about in Mansfield, and throughout the country, if such a pledge were made, and kept, by everybody—or even by the more than 64,000,000 persons affiliated with some form of religious organization!

Then, under the Scout Law, it is set forth that a Scout is: Trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, obedient, kind, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

Read over those words again, if you will, and try to visualize a community in which all citizens joined in DOING THEIR BEST to carry these traits of character into everyday living.

The Boy Scouts is an organization that deserves the greatest possible public co-operation in carrying its influence to as many boys as can be attracted to its ranks. It has already done highly creditable work and may be depended upon to continue with steadily increasing effectiveness.

Pace Makers for Service Plus.

GAS STATIONS in this country are to be still further spruced up. Hereafter, according to the American Petroleum Institute, gas station men are to wear bow ties and shave daily. Courtesy, neatness and prompt service are to be their watchwords. Stations are to be kept neat and attractive, driveways well-groomed, everything thoroughly clean and orderly. There are to be comfortable waiting rooms available during car servicing jobs.

The reason for all this effort is the woman driver. It is estimated that every third steering wheel is in the hands of a woman who won't return to any station of lower standards.

For some stations, meeting all these requirements will constitute a radical reform. For many, however, the regime will be merely a continuation of present practices. Gas stations in the United States are already notable for the most alert and courteous attendants and the most efficient service in the world.

High Cost of Insect Pests.

ACCORDING to recent statistics, the Mexican cotton boll-weevil costs the cotton-growing section of the United States $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 a year. The codling moth causes more than $12,000,000 damage to fruit a year. Leaf hoppers in India have cost a single division in central India nearly $5,000,000. And so it goes.

Nearly everything we grow has some insect pest that has not yet been brought under control, with all the best efforts of entomologists and agricultural research workers.

Is is estimated that the aggregate loss from insect pests in farm crops alone in the United States is greater than the total sum spent on education.

Keeping Step

WASHINGTON—One need only see the army on parade about a capital cocktail table to chase away the blues about how women have stolen all the color in dress and driven the men to somber black and white.

The New York writer, Lucius Beebe, complains forlornly that scarcely a man lives today, except himself, who dares to wear the colors of his choice. He says men are slaves who, for fear of the raillery of their women, can't escape from solemn black to powder blues, pinks, or a shirt with a dash of green.

Among the common men, Beebe is like the fox who lost his tail: few others will join him.

Perhaps it is hardly fair to ring in foreigners, although you should see some of the broad-ribbon wearers strutting about at White House receptions. The French military attaches with their red pants and sky blue tunics splashed with gold are especially colorful.

* * *

Look Out, Rainbow.

BUT our own army men make even Beebe in his brightest mosaics seem a retiring flower—as far as color is concerned. There isn't a woman on the reservation who can touch Uncle Sam's army officers in their new uniforms.

Dark blue prevails but the flair is in the trimmings. Take a captain of artillery, for instance. His blue cap has a broad red band around it. The red is edged with gold. His dark blue full dress coat has "tails," and the trousers are a lighter shade for contrast.

Down each trouser leg is a broad band of red braid, like an elevator operator wears—but no elevator operator to our knowledge pays $75 to $150 for his pants. The decoration on the tailed coat is even fancier. About the cuff of the sleeve is a broad band of gold, then one of red, and another of gold. Interlocking loops of gold run half way to the elbow.

The front of the tailed coat also is modeled after the regular formal wear, but gold buttons range up either side and gold buttons fasten the white vest. And, beauty of beauties, the lapels are red not dull red either, but bright, bright like the sunburst.

On the shoulders is more gold, twisted quoits that lay the buyer back $25 to $60, depending upon the weight.

Infantry does almost as well, except that the infantry uniform lacks the reds and has to be satisfied with contrasting blues, touched up with white and gold.

* * *

Behold—The Cavalry.

BUT the cavalry! Ah. . . . Where the artilleryman sports red, the cavalryman trims his uniform with yellow—yellow lapels, yellow braids down the trouser legs, and yellow cap band.

But, we save the best for the last! That is the cape for all these uniforms. It is a swishy affair that hangs, Napoleon fashion, from the shoulders to the knees. It is dark blue, with black velvet collar and a twist of black braid as a fastening. And now for the color. The cape is lined with the "color of the service," red for artillery, yellow for cavalry, white or blue for infantry, and a variety of other colors for ordnance, medical and what not. And the cape is built to flare, and show the lining.

The mystery about it all is how a fledgling lieuteant with an income of $1,800 or so a year, can lay out the $500 to $1,000 necessary to fit himself with dress outfits, not to mention his ordinary uniforms, which can't be bought at the 15-cent store.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, Feb. 7, 1919.

John Davey, Kent tree expert, inspected trees on Park avenue west, as preliminary to widening street.

Population of Ohio State reformatory increased to 1,194.

County Fish & Game Protective association held annual supper at Elk home.

Price of eggs dropped to 45 cents a dozen as production increased.

Girls in court house offices participated in baking contest.

Russell J. McCullough, 21, died following operation.

J. H. Sheriff went to Cambridge to visit his son, Rev. Charles Sheriff.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Wednesday, Feb. 7, 1934.

Hershel MacLaughlin, Delbert Hass and Luther Cass were killed in an auto-train accident near Shiloh.

The Women's Guild of St. John's Evangelical church celebrated its tenth anniversary.

Mrs. J. A. Herbert and Mrs. Jerome Freundlich were hostesses to the Sappho club at the Herbert home.

Quade Fish, Lexington, was in General hospital as the result of a shotgun accidentally exploding.

Joseph McQuire, proprietor of the McQuire hotel, was seriously ill in General hospital.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The great fire of Baltimore occurred on Feb. 7, 1905. Over 2,500 houses were destroyed.

Daily Bible Thought

TRIUMPHANT FAITH: For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me. —Job 19:25-27.

"BLOOD AND SAND"

British Policy Proves Disturbing

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Inasmuch as (from all official accounts) Uncle Sam is 100 per cent determined to keep out of the next overseas war, what the heck does he care as to the various other countries' respective abilities to stand the wear and tear of the certainly threatening impending major foreign conflict, in the spring or thereabouts?

Well, he does care, anyway.

One hears plenty of speculation on the subject in state, war and navy departmental circles. It is not mere academic curiosity, either. It is based on the supposition that Uncle Samuel will NOT be able to stay on the sidelines in the event of a fresh big clash in the old world—not if the rumpus is very long continued.

This coming war, if it eventuates, manifestly will start between the totalitarians (Germany, Italy and maybe Japan) and the European democracies (Britain and France).

Unprepared, Vacillating?

Now, it is common talk that Britain and France are militarily, navally and aerially unprepared in comparison with Germany and Italy. It likewise is notorious that the London and Paris governments are vacillating and timid, whereas Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini, being dictators, are fixed to act promptly and vigorously.

Assume that the Berlin-Rome "axis," by virtue of speed, should get the "jump" on Britain and France, with every prospect of licking them quickly and permanently. Could the United States stand that?—leaving us as the only surviving democracy?—also leaving the totalitarians dangerously free to "make medicine" in Latin America?

It seems as if we should almost HAVE to lend a hand to European democracy.

Chamberlain and Daladier.

State departmental functionaries are as reticent as oysters, discussing the situation.

Nevertheless, it is no secret that they consider Premier Chamberlain of England as a mighty cautious (not to say cowardly) statesman. They are sore on him, too, for declaring that America will be found alongside John Bull and France if war does come; they think he took a great deal on himself to speak for Uncle Samuel.

Premier Daladier, in Paris, is given credit for adequate nerve, but it is reckoned that he is hamstrung by uncertainty as to Chamberlain's dependability.

Still, Britain is calculated to have tremendous powers of resistance in the long run. Chamberlain can be chucked into the discard and perhaps J. Bull can put up a glorious fight, as he did the last time. France hasn't equal fundamental strength, but it isn't to be sneezed at.

On the opposite hand, how about Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini?

There are peeps that the Fuehrer has formidable discontent at home to count on—discontent that his censorship has smothered, but that would be sure to manifest itself furiously on a show-down. In 1918 the Germans insisted that they were not beaten in the field; that domestic revolution defeated them. Could it happen again, possibly? And the Italians have been described as weak-kneed soldiers. Gosh! how mad that accusation makes 'em! All the same, it weighs with military men.

Say, then, that Hitler and Mussolini were to start a campaign! —mightn't it blow up behind their own lines?

We haven't sufficiently effective espionage service to inform us, but we have our suspicions.

Timely Editorial

Not For Us.

In Mexico, where the government owns the telegraph system, President Cardenas has set aside a daily "complaint hour," during which citizens may send free 20-word messages of complaint to the government.

This struck us, at first, as an excellent idea. On second thought, however, we have decided not to advocate anything of the kind for this country. In the first place, what American citizen could put his complaints into 20 words? In the second, who would read all those telegrams? And in the third, if a vast new bureau were created in Washington to read and file the complaints that would only be one more thing for citizens to complain about.—New York World-Telegram.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

A Duty of Congress.

By GUS W. DYER,
Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

ONE of the prime purposes of the constitution was to protect fundamental human rights and the essential principles of industrial stability and social progress against the nostrums of quacks and the clamor of demagogues for radical action that always come to the front in times of crisis.

Under the abnormal conditions that a crisis creates, a government that is not restrained and guided by the wisdom of experience is always in danger of pursuing a destructive course. The constitution was ordained as a chart and compass to save the American people in storms that might render useless the ordinary navigation guides.

In every other depression the government adhered strictly to the principles of the constitution, confined its activities to its constitutional functions, and put the responsibility on business to lead the country back to normal conditions. In every case, after a brief period of readjustment, business came back stronger and more efficient than it had ever been before.

The depression of 1929 was not different in principle from other world depressions we have experienced. But the method selected by the administration in 1933 of meeting the problems of the depression was absolutely new in our history, and was radical in the extreme. The compass and chart of the constitution were abandoned as completely out of date, and "watch witch" guidance was substituted for the wisdom of experience expressed in the constitution.

The "water witch" ignores the laws of physics, geology, economics and all other known natural laws, and follows mysterious "hunches." The first mysterious, irresistible "hunch" was that prosperity may be obtained by giving away money. Following this "hunch" revelation, coming from a sphere outside of and antagonistic to the sphere of reason, common sense and human experience in business, the administration scattered billions in gifts to individuals, communities, municipalities and institutons. Inspired by another "hunch" the administration destroyed over five million pigs in order to make consumers pay more for their meat, and "plowed up" millions of acres of food and clothing material in order to make consumers pay more for their food and clothing, and thereby help people to possess more by possessing less. Under another hunch, the administration dropped 500 million dollars in the Tennessee Valley in the quest of prosperity—by scattering the taxpayers' money.

Notwithstanding the fact that these "gift hunches" have brought the national debt up to about 40 billion dollars, and the estimated deficit of this year is four billion dollars, the "hunches" continue to "hunch" and the administration continues to lead us deeper and deeper into the red. The latest hunch from the sphere of mystery is demanding that we now put an additional burden of billions of dollars on this and unborn generations in order to prepare for war against somebody, somewhere, sometime.

Unbelievable as it may be, the only solution the administration has for the problem of leading the country out of the chaos into which the wild spree of giving away the people's money has brought us, is more spending, more mortgages on the future, more chaos.

Congress is responsible for this wild destructive rampage, and the great responsibility is on this congress to stop it. It is the failure of the constituted representatives of government to meet the crises like this that is responsible for dictatorships. It has been demonstrated over and over again in Anglo-Saxon history that when the constituted representatives of government demonstrates their weakness in protecting the ideals of constitutional democracy, means, out of the usual order, are always found to save those ideals.

The present congress has the power and the opportunity to put this country on the road to the greatest era of industrial progress the world has ever seen. Will lofty American patriotism or cowardly partisanship control?

A Farmer's Diary

Louis Bromfield, Farmer.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY WIFE and I called at neighbor S's the other evening. Our neighbor's wife, who is a bright woman, with red hair and a touch of Irish, threw a bombshell into the conversation.

"I don't know," she said, "whether I'd want a man like Bromfield to move into our community, or not. Seems to me he might do more harm than good."

Her husband is a mild, slow-spoken man—a solid, substantial farmer. "You needn't worry about what isn't your concern," he reminded her. "The farm Louis Bromfield bought is in southern Richland county, not in Morrow. If a famous man wants to put his old community on the map, what's wrong with it?"

"Even a famous novelist has to live somewhere," I remarked.

"He'll make his place a beauty spot, no doubt," suggested my wife, thinking alond. "He'll have it landscaped and fenced in with a high hedge and maybe he'll raise blooded horses, or something. People will drive for miles to look at it."

"But a man like that is no farmer! He'd be too great to mingle with the community much. He'll buy what they have that he wants, and he'll hire 'em to do his work—his riches will raise their tax value, maybe—but the farmers won't feel comfortable with him, or he with them," expostulated Mrs. S.

"I'm not so sure," her husband interposed. "A man who writes like that man does, knows folks. And even if they're a bit uncomfortable maybe the farmers will learn something. He'll bring ideas in from all over the world."

"He's really a cosmopolitan," said I, "a citizen of the world, not of any community."

"He has a wife and family, like anybody else," suggested my wife, whose thoughts often take the domestic turn, "and if he has too much money, he can't help it. I'll bet they're glad to get to a safe, quiet place, where they can forget some of the war strain they've been under."

"Well, all the same, as farmers I'll bet they'll be laughing stock—and if Richland county gets a tinge of French and Indian and Oriental into its agriculture, it'll be strong seasoning," she said. "For my part, I'm glad our farm is over the line,—out of the rich man's dooryard."

"And still," laughed my wife, "if they were neighbors of yours, you'd be the first woman in the community to call."

We all chuckled. This kind neighbor's interest in other folks' comfort is common knowledge. That, and her wit, have endeared her to the community.

"Well, of course," she admitted, "I hope the farmers won't be unkind to them. It's like you say—they've been away a long time, and ought to be able to appreciate their home."

Listen, World!

Are There Rags on Your Soul?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FEELING sunk . . . sick of everything . . . ready to quit? Then it's plain poison for you either to expect or accept pity. Sympathy can't help you when you're taking the count. There is only one thing that can help you, and that is—to face the Truth. Meaning—?

IT'S YOUR OWN FAULT IF YOU FEEL SUNK!

You don't believe it, do you? And you're probably saying to yourself, "If that woman had ever known any real trouble, she wouldn't be so callous in her judgments."

Don't fool yourself, friend! I've hit the mat as often as the next one—and hollered just as loud, if not louder. That's why I know that WE CHOOSE OUR OWN UNHAPPINESS!

No mortal can entirely control the outer circumstances of his life. But every man can and does determine his attitude toward those circumstances.

David Seabury speaks of this in that most helpful and understanding book, "Adventures in Self Discovery" (Whittlesey House). He had the good fortune once to hear a lecture by Booker T. Washington, greatest of American Negroes. Booker Washington, as you may know, was born in slavery. All of his youth was spent in extreme poverty. In addition to his servitude, poverty and illiteracy, he was extremely homely, almost grotesquely black. If ever a man seemed hopelessly handicapped, Booker T. Washington did.

Standing beside him, David Seabury thought of these things, wondering, "What had given this one-time, tattered little outcast, ignorant and poor, the power to become a leader of humanity." The answer came to him—

"FROM INFANCY HE HAD REFUSED DEFILEMENT. HE HAD NOT ALLOWED A SLAVE SPIRIT TO SETTLE IN HIS CONSCIOUSNESS. TO LET ANYONE OR ANYTHING IMPINGE UPON HIS SPIRIT. HE DID NOT THINK OF HIMSELF AS A NEGRO BUT AS A HUMAN BEING. HIS HEART WORE NO FILTHY RAGS, AND ALTHOUGH HE HAD TO LIVE IN DEBASED CONDITIONS, THEY HAD NEVER LIVED IN HIM."

I know how true this is, for I, too, once saw Mr. Washington. He was crossing San Francisco bay on a ferry late one afternoon. There had been some grand occasion and scores of handsomely groomed people stood chattering, laughing, on the upper deck. Ahead, the city floated in unearthly beauty . . . its golden hills rising file upon glittering file out of the darkening surf into a glory of flame.

There he, the seeming outcast, stood between the sunset splendor and that preening peacock pack—a thick, stooped, shabby man whose huge arms hung from the yoke of his shoulders like a gorilla's. Black bondage? No! For, though his back was bent for the term of this life by the cruelty of his fellow men, his head was free. And now that head was lifted toward the city . . . lifted clear from the squat darkness below it. And on that lifted face lay such rapture as I have rarely seen—

HIS SOUL WORE NO RAGS! . . . HIS IMAGINATION KNEW NO SHACKLES! . . . OUT OF ALL THE MAKINGS OF HATE AND HUMILIATION, DESPAIR AND DEFEAT, HE HAD CHOSEN . . . VICTORY!

So you, too, can choose. You don't have to "wait until things get better" in order to change your attitude from that of a slave to a conqueror. You can do it now as easily as you could if you had all the breaks. For if you're disposed to choose unhappiness, you'll find as many chances when you're rich and famous as when you're poor and obscure. Not the same chances, but others, just as mean and mournful. The fellow who's looking for joy can find it in the sheen on a pebble . . . but the fellow who's bent on grief wouldn't be happy if you gave him the whole ocean.

Does Seem Silly.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—We're somewhere in Manhattan, probably 30 feet underground, in a mechanized tube that has light and air and heat and advertisements and uniformed attendants and people reading Russian newspapers, people reading Italian newspapers, people reading Yiddish newspapers, people reading German newspapers, people reading all the big New York dailies, printed in English.

Our tube is hurtling through the gloom of a subterranean channel, and at irregular moments little jeweled cities flash past, cities garish in their amber lights, cities with numbers and names—Canal, Houston, Wall, Park—only, they aren't cities. They are stations which lead to the streets above.

Most of these cities our tube ignores, for we are marked "Express," and sub-stations aren't considered on this quest of time and space—time saved, that is, and distance covered.

* * *

HERE is a big Pole thoughtfully devouring a sandwich. The chin of the man next to him has dropped to his chest, and he is snoring. Across the aisle a trim young woman is knitting a sweater. A musician in evening clothes with his violin case between his knees, is talking with a cop who has a caged canary on his knees. What a cop would be doing with a canary I am unable to guess.

There are, to be exact, 44 people in this tube, and two of them are standing at the end, very much interested in each other. That is evident to everyone. He has his hands clasped around her arm, as if to steady her against the swaying of the tube. Suddenly he leans toward her and kisses her, very deliberately, on the lips. She kisses him back. Neither seems hurried or the slightest bit embarrassed.

That is one of the things that has always astounded me about New York—the way people kiss. They kiss in the street, or in theater lobbies, or at drugstore counters, or standing in the middle of the sidewalks. And nobody ever seems embarrassed.

* * *

THEIR big moment is ended with a bang, however, as the tube flashes into the largest city of all—a vast, seething, many-peopled city—and comes to an abrupt halt. The suddenness of the stop throws them against the tube wall. They giggle, but no one else giggles. Everyone is bent on cramming through those sliding doors, which have noiselessly and magically opened. Everyone is in a mad rush to get out of this tube and get on other tubes or climb stairways that lead once more into the light.

So you put your best shoulder forward—and somehow you get out of there and are swept along in a human tide for perhaps 50 feet before you are spilled at the foot of a stairway. You take a deep breath, and adjust your hat, and your coat. Then you climb those stairs and emerge into the glare of Times Square.

That is a subway ride in New York.

LONDON, PARIS RECOGNITION OF FRANCO NEARS

Backing for Insurgent Regime Seen Only Hope to Check Dictator Influence.

terrible years—the form and composition of the government that shall rule the land of the Dons.

That is the issue which impelled Italy and Germany and Portugal to intervene in this family quarrel and aid the Insurgents, and which brought help to the constitutional government from Russia and France, among others.

It is what on numerous occasions all but precipitated a general European war. The revolution had ceased to be strictly Spanish, and had become international, before the first gun was fired.

Now Insurgent Generalissimo Franco is close enough to final victory to have to do the magic hat-trick and produce the solution for which the world has been waiting. Upon the deftness of his hand may depend the trend of momentous events quite outside the confines of his own country.

Thus far Franco has kept his secret locked within himself, as regards the public. These strong probabilities, however, have been forecast by numerous events:

There likely will be some form of totalitarian government. Whatever the government may be, the 46-year-old Franco will be the big boss, irrespective of what title he may bear.

Also, it's a good bet as any other that the Bourbon monarchy will be restored, even if there is a totalitarian state.

Franco himself made it clear long ago that he could work with the restored monarchy, and said that this might come to pass.

When we get to talking about a possible Fascist dictatorship, however—and many have expected that because of the armed assistance given by Mussolini and Hitler—we are off on uncharted ground. Franco has kept clear of that subject.

'I Want Peace,' Says President Azanda.

ST. JULIEN, France — (U.P.) — President Manuel Azana of the Spanish Loyalist government said today:

"I want peace and Spain wants peace as soon as possible."

It was the first statement Azana had made since he crossed the Catalonian frontier to seek refuge in France, and it removed any doubt that he, at least, among Spanish leaders did not feel that the time had come to end a war which had bled Spain of its men and national resources for two and a half years.

Azana arrived at Colonnes-Sous-Saleve, near here and close to the Swiss frontier, last night with Diego Martinez Barrio, president of the Loyalist parliament, and Jose Giral Pereira, minister without portfolio in the cabinet and former premier.

Ten students at Hedges Junior high school were placed on the honor roll for the third term of the first semester of the 1938-39 school year, and 160 others were given honorable mention, Glenn G. Rohleder, principal, announced today.

The seventh and eight grade each placed five students on the honor roll, and 60 from the seventh grade and 34 from the eighth grade received honorable mention.

Those on the honor roll are Richard Pace, Hugh Everly, Mary Lou Scanlon, Joyce Hubbs and Anna Fischer, seventh grade, and Harry Baer, Evelyn Art, Lucille Chesroun, Clara Lorentz and Marjorie McClure, eighth grade.

CONFIRMS TWO FOR CITY POSTS

Council O. K.'s Reappointment of Dr. B. H. Moffatt, Skiles; Considers Wage Bill.

SHELBY—Two reappointments made by Mayor D. B. Young were confirmed by city council last night at its regular session. A discussion of a salary ordinance for the Shelby police department was held during a 90-minute closed meeting of the council. No action was taken on the ordinance.

Howard Skiles was reappointed on the civil service commission, while Dr. B. H. Moffatt was renamed as city health commissioner. Dr. Moffatt has held the post, which pays an annual salary of $2,040, for about 10 years.

The closed meeting for discussion of the police salary ordinance was made on a motion by Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger. It was seconded by Councilman Chester Bell.

Although figures of the ordinance, presented to the council by Police Chief Leroy Coffey, were not available, Mayor D. B. Young said that the new salary scale would be an "increase" over the present salaries in the department. The ordinance would set a "base" salary for all the patrolmen, determined by the number of years of service in the department, Mayor Young stated.

The second reading of an ordinance amending a section of the city's parking regulations was passed by the council. The ordinance, if passed, will allow parking on South Gamble street from the first alley south of West Main street to Wall street.

At the close of the council meeting, the Boy Scouts elected to the city offices for the Civic day next Saturday were given instructions by council and city officials on their procedure in a council meeting. The Scout council will hold a special meeting Saturday afternoon as part of the Civic day activities.

Two Children Drown Under Ice, Third Saved

Eager to watch a fisherman on the ice in Jamaica bay, New York, Emma Gray, 10; her brother, George, 8, and Alma White, 8, started to walk toward him. One hundred yards off shore the ice gave way. Emma and George were drowned. The fisherman succeeded in rescuing Alma. Wilfred Gray wrings his cap in anguish (left) as first aid crew works in vain over his son, and a priest administers last rites of church. Alma (top left), recovering at home, smiles after her narrow escape.

SHELBY SCOUTS HOLD BANQUET

Father-Mother Event to Be Held Tomorrow; Expect 150 at Session.

SHELBY—The annual Father-Mother Scout banquet will be held in this city at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at the United Brethren church. About 150 Scouts and guests are expected for the affair, General Chairman Willard Boyles said today.

The banquet will be an innovation in Scout circles in this vicinity as it will be the first one that will have the mothers of Scouts as guests as well as the fathers, Chairman Boyles pointed out. The affair opens activities in this city for the celebration this week of National Scout Week.

The Shelby Scouts will receive promotion and merit badge awards during the court of honor banquet. C. G. Keck, court chairman, assisted by Shelby Scout officials and Johnny Appleseed area officials from Mansfield, will be in charge of the court.

A feature of the entertainment program will be a demonstration of the Scout investiture ceremony for a Tenderfoot by members of Troop 1 and 3. The rope ritual and a special candle light service written by Scoutleader Wayne Carlton will be given during the ceremony.

Committees arranging the event that were appointed by President Julius Sutter of the Shelby Scout council, who will be the toastmaster for the banquet, include General Chairman Boyles; general arrangements, Arch Kirkpatrick, chairman; Luther Earl, George Williams and William Parnell; and program, Wayne Carlton, chairman, Jacque Kaler and Henry Betts.

AWAIT CURTAIN

Community Players to Present Mystery Drama Tonight.

The Mansfield Community Players will raise the curtain on their second performance of the season at 8:15 p. m. today when they present "Night Must Fall" at Senior high school auditorium.

Mansfield audiences, which have shown a decided preference for mystery or murder stories, will find a play to their liking in this English drama of a murderer and the workings of his distorted mind. "Night Must Fall," which recently was made in motion pictures, provided Robert Montgomery, film star, with the most unusual role of his career.

The overture and music between acts tonight will be provided by an ensemble directed by Laurence Todd. The play, which is staged in one setting, has one of the smallest casts of any production staged by the players recently. There are only eight characters in all.

DENNIS RENAMED

Casualty Company Re-elects Other Officers.

SHELBY—L. A. Dennis was re-elected president and general manager of the Shelby Mutual Plate Glass and Casualty company Monday at the 59th annual meeting at the company's offices in this city.

No changes were made in the officers for 1939. Other officers renamed were H. G Hildebrant, vice president; J. J. Crum, secretary; L. M. Dunathan, assistant secretary; G. S. Dennis, treasurer; and S. S. Kerr, assistant treasurer.

Directors re-elected to the board of directors during the annual policyholders meeting were Crum, Dunathan and George M. Gray of Coshocton. Other members of the board of director are L. A. Dennis, Hildebrant, G. S. Dennis, Roy Van Wagner, S. D. Inscho of Shelby, and P. G. Wertz of Cleveland.

Reports of the officers at the meeting showed an increase in business for the company during the past year. The net premium income for 1938 was $1,274,607.06 as compared with $1,274,118.29 for 1937. Total assets of the company are $1,554,670.61, while the surplus is $478,939.41, the reports showed.

Louisiana's $6,000,000 a year fur business is larger than that of Canada or Alaska combined. The annual toll in animals is estimated at 3,000,000 muskrats, 200,000 opossums, 100,000 raccoons, 100,000 mink and 40,000 skunks.

SENATE AWAITS ROOSEVELT DIG

Expects Lashing From Letter to Roberts, Rejected as U. S. Judge by 72-9 Vote.

James H. Price and the New Deal faction of Virginia Democrats. He was opposed by Virginia's senators, Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, both of whom expect to help nominate a comparatively conservative Democrat for president next year.

The next test was expected when the senate votes on the nomination of Amlie, who is being examined by a sub-committee as to his fitness to serve on the ICC. Amlie will be asked by Sen. Warren R. Austin, R., Vt., today to defend himself against charges by the Wisconsin legislature that he is a Communist.

Amlie opened the Interstate commerce sub-committee's hearings on his nomination with a denial of the Communist charges. He cited the past record of attacks on him by Communists as evidence of his contention that "I am not a Communist, and never have been a Communist."

Fifty of the senate's 69 Democrats backed Glass and Byrd to reject Roberts in support of the sometimes violated tradition that a senator need only proclaim a nominee from his state to be personally obnixious to prevent his confirmation. Because that custom of the "world's most exclusive club" figures so largely in the Roberts vote, the 72-to-9 alignment exaggerates New Deal senate weakness.

2 Senators Ready To Bare 'Secrets.'

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Two "Madison diaries" of the historic secret conference President Roosevelt held with 17 members of the senate military affairs committee last week, were in possession of two committeemen today.

The two senators, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, privately declared they were awaiting only a release from their pledges of secrecy to the president to make public the notes they made immediately after the meeting.

These diaries, recalling the precious notes of the constitutional convention that were kept by James Madison—the source today of researchers in ascertaining what happened at that turning point in history, were said to be at variance with president's publicly-announced foreign policy.

ANCIENT KNIFE

Weapon of Historic Period Found In Central Oregon.

BEND, Ore.—(INS)—A stone knife found by excavators at the Kidiup dam site on the Deschutes River convinced University of Oregon anthropologists that man lived in the northwest prior to the world-shaking explosion that destroyed ancient Mount Mazama in paleolithic times. Under pumice scattered over central Oregon thousands of years ago, Victor G. Kenney discovered the weapon buried four feet underground.

Out of 98 governors of South Carolina, 19 were natives of Charleston.

Six students of the vocal and instrumental music departments will present a variety program Sunday, Feb. 26, at the reformatory. Those who will take part are Dale Bechtel, violinist; Richard Sparks, pianist; Wanda Hess, mezzo soprano; Javetta Bookmyer, soprano, and Robert Early and Willis Wygant, baritones.

The students will present two programs, one in the morning and another in the afternoon.

POWER CURB DUE

U. S. Drafts Order Reducing WLW's Station Wattage.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The federal communications commission today was drafting a formal order which will discontinue the super-power operations of radio station WLW, of the Crosley Radio Corporation, of Cincinnati. The order will be presented the corporation within a few days.

Six of the seven commissioners late yesterday voted unanimously in denying the corporation an extension of the experimental license on which it has been operating WLW on 500,000 watts-power with unlimited time.

The commission held the corporation had "failed to sustain the burden of showing that the special authorization requested is necessary in order to accomplish a proposed program of experimentation which will offer promise of substantial contribution to the radio art."

ITALY, RUSSIA TO SIGN PACT

Agreement To End Squabble Over Trade Relationship.

ROME—(INS)—Italy and Soviet Russia are scheduled to sign a commercial agreement at 7:30 p. m. tonight liquidating outstanding economic controversies and establishing new trade relationships between Rome and Moscow, International News Service learned today on unimpeachable authority.

Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano will sign for Italy and Russian Ambassador Stein for the Soviets.

In connection with the agreement, it was learned that a small destroyer built in Italy for the Soviet navy will be launched at Livorno on Feb. 10.

CHECKS PAROLE CASES IN COUNTY

New District Officer Has Charge of Eight Counties.

Leo J. Schaeper, Delaware, new parole officer in the Mansfield area, made his first official visit to the city today.

Schaeper was transferred to District No. 9, which includes Richland county, following re-districting of Ohio counties and reduction of the number of districts from 22 to 13. There are eight counties in Schaeper's division. He said he had 40 parole cases in Richland county, more than in any of the other seven counties.

O. E. Sibert, Ashland, former parole officer for the county, has been transferred to the Canton district.

The three-wheeled motorcycle could be operated by one man, and the other member of the cycle patrol assigned to cruiser duty, officials pointed out.

KENTUCKY ASKS AID, MOUNTAIN FLOODS FEARED

State Waits Reports From Hilly Areas; Danger in Other Sectors Abates

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Fearing a belated report of disaster in flood-stricken mountain areas, Kentucky called for assistance today as the crest of the Ohio river moved past this city.

Dr. A. T. McCormack, state health commissioner at Louisville, said he feared a heavy death list might be revealed in the eastern section where the Ohio's tributaries swept to housetop levels Sunday.

"This is the worst flood in the history of the mountains," said Dr. McCormack, asking for an appropriation from the emergency fund of the U. S. public health service.

Across the border residents of Newport and Covington retreated as the crest of the Ohio reached here at 58 feet.

600 Families Move.

Police Chief Leo Livingston of Newport, Ky., estimated 600 families had been removed from homes. The water inundated 35 city blocks, Red Cross agencies were prepared to evacuate 1,200 families in the lowlands here.

Harassed by the "flash" floods of small streams, Kentucky held little fear of an emergency from the oncoming crest of the Ohio. Meteorologist J. L. Kendall at Louisville said the city had a 'big margin of safety" with an anticipated high of 34 feet.

At Frankfort, Ky., the Kentucky river covered the low lying sections with a foot of water, blocking highways.

Homes along southern Indiana's border were abandoned, setting relief agencies at work in Aurora, Lawrenceburg and Evansville.

Four boats and 54 men from the Long Island, N. Y., coast guard stations were ready for orders to aid rescue work, and at Cleveland, Lieut. Commander E. Zoole of the Ninth division said all stations had been issued stand-by orders.

The Red Cross estimated 10,000 families affected by floods in five states.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

SORORITY ALUMNAE ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Earl Gaar Will Head Chi Omega Club; Arrangements for Future Program Will Be Made By Mrs. D. T. Balph.

MRS. EARL GAAR was elected president of the Chi Omega Alumnae club yesterday evening when that newly-organized group met at her home on Park avenue west. Mrs. D. T. Balph was chosen to assist her as vice-president for the year. Mrs. John McLean will serve the club as secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Balph will also be in charge of the program committee and arrangements for future meeting. Miss Marianne Springer and Mrs. Robert Beck are the other members of this committee.

Five new members were welcomed into the club last evening Miss Wilma Walker, Mrs. Robert Beck and Mrs Carl Williams are the new Mansfield members. Mrs. Eleanor Lentz of Ashland and Mrs. Emeline Simmons of Plymouth were also present and plan to participate in activities of the club.

During the business session, the group made plans for future meetings and decided to hold a banquet on April 5 in celebration of the founding of the sorority. The remainder of the evening was spent socially, and later Mrs. Gaar served a buffet luncheon to the group.

Mrs. McLean has invited the club members to her home for the next regular meeting, March 6, at her home on West Chestnut street Miss Florence Robison will serve as associate hostess for that evening.

Presents Paper At Luncheon of Round Table Club

During a meeting of the Round Table club yesterday afternoon, Mrs. B. L. Chase, president of the organization, commended Mrs. John W. Cook for the book reviews which she gave at a dinner meeting of the Book Review club in Mt. Gilead on Feb. 4.

There were 19 members of the club present for the luncheon meeting at the Women's Club yesterday, when Mrs. H. L. Crevelng was the hostess. Mrs. Stanley Richardson and Mrs. Cook presided at the luncheon table.

Mrs. Richardson was in charge of the afternoon's program, and she gave a talk on "Indian Lore of Ohio," followed by a group discussion of the subject. The club members responded to role call with items of Ohio news.

The club is planning a joint meeting and luncheon with the Victorian and Travelers clubs on Feb. 20 at the Women's Club. Dr. J H. King of Denison university will be the guest speaker at that time, when Mrs. Edwin Mansfield will serve as hostess from the Round Table club.

Games, Contests Occupy Pocahontas Degree Team

There were 21 members of the Pocahontas degree team present yesterday at the meeting held at the home of Miss Cora Fisher on North Walnut street. Mrs. Sadie Weil won the contest prize and both five hundred and bunco were played.

High scores were held by Mrs. Clara Cramer, Mrs. Elizabeth Konves and Mrs. Rose Trexler. Luncheon was served by the hostess at the close of play, and it was announced that Mrs. Marie Cole will entertain at her Dudley avenue home, March 6.

Delta Theta Tau Plans Party, Initiation

Most of the business last night of the Delta Theta Tau sorority was consideration of methods of fund raising. Plans were made, however, for formal initiation of candidates and also for a post-nuptial party for Mrs. Clifford A. Faust (Freeda Herring).

The initiation and party are set for Feb. 20, but the place has not yet been selected The committee on arrangements includes the Misses Alvina Wappner, Virginia Leight, Doris Mann and Thelma Reed.

For over 20 years Dr. F M Edwards successfully treated scores of his patients with Olive Tablets. Their fame soon spread and today they are sold and heartily recommended by druggists everywhere.

Mrs. Theaker Has Meeting of Study Club Last Night

When Mrs. Samuel Theaker, Glessner avenue, opened her home to 21 members of the Monday Study club last night two book reviews were presented. Mrs. Frank Daniels gave a review of "Listen! The Wind" by Anne Lindbergh. She developed her report by means of an outline map tracing the course of the flight, and showing the district through which the flying couple passed.

Mrs Clarence H. Bell then reviewed "All This and Heaven Too" by Rachel Field, the true account of the unusual experiences of a French governess, and the spectacular Praslin murder case during the reign of Louis Phillipe.

Mrs Eugent Renwick assisted Mrs. Theaker, and tea was served at the close of the program from a table decorated with red carnations and lighted red and white tapers Mrs. Nicholas White presided at the table.

The club will meet again with Mrs. Harrison Alvord assisted by Mrs Daniels on Feb. 20.

Miss Vangelene Cook, president of the chapter, conducted the business session, after which the group played bridge and Chinese checkers. A buffet luncheon was served at the close of the evening from a long table, which was centered with a bouquet of spring flowers.

The Beta chapter will have a called meeting at the home of Mrs. Clare Bell on Maple street, next Sunday afternoon. The group will motor to Ashland on Feb. 16 when the Epsilon chapter will entertain the three Mansfield chapters of the sorority, Beta, Gamma, and Delta The next regular meeting of Beta chapter will be at Mrs. Bell's home on Feb. 23.

'Women In Industry' On Program of Study Group

Members of the Notre Dame study club, who generally meet on Tuesday evenings, were the guests of Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus, Coleman road last night for a discussion of "Women in Industry." Each member had a question on this subject which she spoke about, and group discussions followed.

Monsignor R C. Goebel was a guest of the club The next meeting of the club will be Feb. 21 at the home of Mrs. Paul Hensler Mrs. John O'Donnell is in charge of the program.

TO REVITALIZE PLANTS.

Potted plants whose leaves take on an unhealthy yellowish tinge during the winter as a result of steam heat usually respond happily to a dose of tea When watering the plants add a portion of good strong tea to the watering pot. A mixture of half tea and half water is good.

PRETTY AND PRACTICAL.

New food covers similar to the transparent hat boxes which give closets such a luxurious air are now on the market and will add a touch of practical charm to your kitchen equipment. The covers are of a transparent plastic and keep cakes, breads and similar foods from drying out.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup Than You Can Buy
A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good thing but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Instantly, you feel it taking hold It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.
